Vatican Suspends Plans For JFK To Meet Pope

Pontiff Quoted As Saying Death Not Too Far Off

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Described as believing he has only three to four weeks to live, Pope John XXIII lay so gravely ill that the Vatican Monday suspended plans for a papal audience for President Kennedy next month.

The 81-year-old pontiff was reported to have shown some improvement through Monday.

It was learned early Tuesday that his personal physician, Dr. Antonio Gasbarrini, eased his all-night vigil for the first time in a week, spending the night away from the Vatican.

But other medical attendants remained near the ailing pontiff constantly specialists were on call only minutes away, and there still was the deepest concern about his condition.

His doctors ordered him to stay in bed. His sacristan was reported remaining constantly near the Pope's apartments, ready to administer extreme unction.

Italy's biggest paper, Corriere Della Sera of Milan, said the Pope had told a visitor: "I know very well what I have. And I also know that I only have three to four weeks of life."

Advance Party Cancels Trip

In Washington, a White House advance party suddenly canceled plans to fly here to arrange for President Kennedy's visit to Rome and to the Pope about June 22.

A Vatican source said that not within several days, nor even in the immediately foreseeable future, will any Vatican authority feel competent to make plans for papal activity next month.

The Pope's doctors have told him he must stay in bed to avert further hemorrhages that could endanger his life. They did not say how long he must continue to do so. But it was clear the Pope had not shown the hoped-for recovery since a relapse last Tuesday.

The Vatican has only described the Pope's ailment, which first struck him last November, as a stomach disorder and serious anemia.

The belief is that the stomach disorder is an ulcer or cancer, provoking the hemorrhages which cause the anemia.

Given More Transfusions

Doctors would not even let him walk to his studio window for his usual Sunday noon blessing of the crowd in St. Peter's Square. They are reported to have warned him that the effort might have caused further loss of blood. He was reported to have had hemorrhages Sunday morning and Saturday night.

He is being given frequent blood transfusions and blood coagulation agents.

The Pope's Rome doctor, Piero Mazzoni, remained near the Pope's apartment for a sixth all-night vigil, but left the Vatican for several hours Monday morning.

The Vatican paper, L'Osservatore Romano, said the Pope's condition Sunday night "showed general improvement—above all subjective," meaning that the Pope felt better.

It said the Pope's doctors found some further improvement in his condition Monday. He was reported to have passed a good night. Lights in his apartment were off all night, indicating he had not needed attention.

Colorful Nurses

WINNIPEG (AP) — Nurses at the Winnipeg Children's Hospital are swapping the traditional white uniforms for colorful dresses. As a result, says the nursing director, Patricia Scorer, the children are less frightened of the nurses and some ask if they are having a party.

Papers For Governor

Deputy U.S. Marshals Henry Floyd (left) and Jack Johnson hand legal papers to a Negro maid, Martha Davis, at the governor's mansion in Montgomery, Ala., yesterday after failing to serve them on Gov. George Wallace. State troopers kept the marshals away from the governor. Cause Of Tanker Disappearance Remains Mystery

NEW YORK (AP) — A special Coast Guard board of inquiry could find no final conclusions as to the exact cause of the disappearance of the sulphur-carrying tanker Marine Sulphur Queen last February.

The board ended its session here with announcement Monday by Rear Adm. James D. Craik that the Marine Sulphur Queen and the entire crew of 39 persons must be presumed lost.

He said that no final conclusions as to the cause would be available until further study and review.

The ship went down in the vicinity of the Florida Straits on Feb. 3 while en route from Beaumont, Tex., to Norfolk, Va., with a load of molten sulphur.

Senate Passes Mental Bill 72-1

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate passed Monday President Kennedy's bill authorizing $848 million in federal funds over 10 years to attack problems of mental illness and mental retardation.

The roll-call vote was 72-1. The long dissenter was Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb.

The measure, a high-priority item on Kennedy's 1963 program, was sent to the House, where Commerce Committee hearings already have been completed on it.

The passage vote came after the Senate defeated, 43-27, an attempt by Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., to attach to it a rider barring any racial discrimination in the beneficiary states.

The rider was killed on a motion to table by Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., who said he sympathized entirely with what the New Yorker sought to do. But Mansfield said adoption of such a rider would kill the bill, apparently because it would stir strong Southern opposition.

Chandler Faces 'Dark Horse' In Kentucky Race

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP)—A. B. Chandler, a colorful, seasoned political personality campaigning on a hot sales tax issue, hopes to overwhelm three opponents Tuesday and capture the Democratic nomination for a possible third term as Kentucky governor.

The state never has elected a chief executive three times. Under the law, a governor can not succeed himself.

Chandler, nationally known as "Happy" will be 65 this summer. Among his challengers is Edward T. Breathitt Jr., 38, a Hopkinsville attorney who, though endorsed by Gov. Bert Combs, was almost unknown politically a year ago.

Also in the race are Miss Mary Louise Foust of Shelbyville, a former state auditor; and Wilton Cupp of Covington.

Breathitt has come up so quickly that political observers, who gave him little chance six months ago, now rate the contest a toss-up.

An estimated 500,000 to 600,000 Kentuckians will vote in the Democratic primary. Voting hours are 6 a.m. to 5 p.m. local time.

Louie Nunn, a Glasgow attorney, has apparently only token opposition in the Republican governor's primary. He faces Jesse N. R. Cecil of Louisville, a loser in 15 races.

The split among Democrats is deep.

A leading issue among Democrats is the 3 per cent sales tax imposed in 1960, shortly after the current regime took office.

Chandler repeated a sales tax in 1935 when he first became governor. He has pledged to exempt food, medicine and clothing if elected.

No Press Conference

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy will not hold a news conference this week, the White House said Monday.

Dixie Theater Owners, Meredith Talk With RFK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy met for 90 minutes Monday with Southern theater owners as the administration renewed its efforts to encourage voluntary integration of public places. More meetings with other groups are planned for this week.

Kennedy told the 37 theater owners they should anticipate desegregation problems and try to solve them on a town-by-town basis.

The session followed a brief meeting between Kennedy and James H. Meredith, first Negro knowingly admitted to the University of Mississippi. Afterward, Meredith said he told Kennedy stronger civil rights legislation is needed.

Edwin O. Guthman, Kennedy's information aide, said Kennedy and the theater men, who own about 80 per cent of the movie houses in the South, had "an extremely useful exchange of views."

Guthman said the owners, including John H. Stembler, president of the Theater Owners of America, "expressed appreciation that there would be a cooperative attitude on the part of government" toward attempts by the owners to solve their own problems.

He said other meetings probably will be held this week with other business groups, but declined to identify them.

The attorney general met with Negro leaders and hotel and other business men in a series of conferences in New York last week.

U.S. Officials Say Red Bloc Crisis Looms

West Could Win Cold War Struggle, Authorities Say

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — High-ranking State Department authorities said Monday that a crisis which the West has been waiting for is building up within the Communist bloc.

They said the crisis is over how the Communists will push ahead toward their long-held goal of world domination. And they said the Free World, if it does not let up, is in a position to clinch the struggle against Red expansion.

They added, however, that the United States is fettered in its international leadership by racial discrimination at home, which harms its standing abroad.

These views were given to a foreign policy conference for non-governmental agencies held at the State Department. The speakers talked under rules forbidding public use of their names.

Soviet-Chinese Rift

The assessment of the present situation in the Communist world was set in the context of Soviet Premier Khrushchev's problems and the forthcoming Red Chinese-Soviet meeting over the rift between the two.

The Soviets have espoused "peaceful coexistence" as the preferred technique for advancing Communist aims. Red China pushes a harder line calling for war if need be.

Khrushchev was described as personally still firmly in control at the Kremlin, but faced with a mounting array of problems which have slowed down the Communist world revolutionary drive. Problems listed included the Red Chinese rift, Eastern European restiveness toward Moscow domination, Soviet foreign policy and aid failures around the world and loss of influence in Communist parties abroad.

Khrush May Get Tougher

The State Department authorities concluded that an effect of Khrushchev's difficulties may be to harden the Kremlin posture towards the West. They said the West is probably in for some fairly somber Cold War months ahead.

At the same time, they said, it will be difficult for the United States to keep in touch witht he Soviets to find some points of mutual interest on which agreement might be possible.

They said, however, that cooperation on space matters, establishment of a "hot line" communications link between Washington and Moscow and a nuclear test-ban agreement were among the possibilities.

Attempted Bank Holdup By Girl Fails

NEW YORK (AP)—A 15-year-old girl, a toy gun in her hand, tried to hold up a downtown bank Monday. But her obedience to her elders led to her arrest.

The green-eyed brunette identified herself as Joanne Bernard of Rumford, Maine. She said she arrived by bus Monday morning from Rumford, where she attends junior high school, and that she wanted money to go to Paris.

She walked in to a Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. branch on Park Row, near the bustling Wall Street area, took a toy gun from a red handbag and leveled it at teller Edith Mauro.

"I want $2,000," the girl declared.

"Don't do that," Miss Mauro commanded, as another teller, Edward Nally, moved to her side.

"I want $2,000," the girl repeated.

"You'll have to go in the back and talk to the manager," Nally advised.

Obediently, the girl made her way to the desk of Manager Al Robbins, where she again declared "I want $2,000."

"Sit down and I'll get it for you," Robbins directed.

As the girl complied, Robbins walked out the front door and brought back two policemen.

She was booked on a charge of juvenile delinquency and detained overnight at the Youth House for Girls for an appearance in Manhattan children's court Tuesday.

Back From Mt. Everest

Everest Climbers Flown To Hospital; Tell Of Difficulties

Frostbitten Duo Got Lost High On Peak

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — Painfully frostbitten, two members of the U.S. Mt. Everest expedition returned to Katmandu with a tale of being lost on the roof of the world—and kicking each other with spiked boots to keep body circulation going in 18 below zero cold.

There was a time, too, when the men who conquered the 29,028-foot summit lost their tempers but quickly melded back into a team to make a safe return.

That was the account Monday of William Unsoeld, 36, of Corvallis, Ore., and Barry C. Bishop, 30, of Washington, D.C. They were flown to a hospital in Katmandu by helicopter for emergency treatment of badly frostbitten toes and frost-blackened fingertips.

Unsoeld did most of the talking. Bishop appeared dazed. They sat on the back porch of the hospital in a warm sun talking to newsmen.

They looked bone-tired and obviously in pain, but still were able to hobble. Mountaineers describe frostbite pain as excruciating—like having your toes in boiling water.

Unsoeld and Bishop were afflicted after the double U.S. assault on the world's highest peak last Wednesday.

Unsoeld and Thomas Hornbein, 32, of San Diego, Calif., made the historic climb by conquering Everest from the rugged, untraveled western ridge. Bishop and Luther Jerstad, 26, of Eugene, Ore., made it by way of the previously traveled south side.

The south team reached the summit first and started down. Unsoeld and Hornbein reached the peak several hours later after a harrowing 12-hour climb.

On the way down, Unsoeld said, Hornbein suggested halting near Tag Summit to await rescue. Unsoeld said he wanted to go on. Tempers grew short.

"After a long argument, we did go down," Unsoeld said. "Then we saw a vague black blur." It was Bishop and Jerstad.

The four joined up for the descent. But they got lost in the dark and were unable to find their camp. They were exhausted and out of oxygen.

"We just picked out a rocky patch and lay down on it," Unsoeld asid. "It was a casual type bivouac."

It was 5½ hours until dawn.

"We kicked with our feet to keep circulation going," Unsoeld said. "Some of us kicked each other."

Bishop cut in at this point: "And with crampons on, that's no fun."

Crampons are the long spikes on the bottoms of climbing boots.

Next morning, Dr. David Dingman of Baltimore, Md., and a Sherpa guide intercepted them and took them down to the base camp.

Then began a virtual forced march down the rugged mountain to Namche Bazar, 12,400 feet up, for a meeting with the helicopter to bring Unsoeld and Bishop to Katmandu and treatment of the frostbite they received during the night on the mountain without shelter.

Photos Furnish Thresher Clues

PORTSMOUTH, N.H. (AP) — Photographs of bits of debris on the ocean floor—"the best clues" yet—heightened speculation Monday that Navy searchers may be closing on on the mystery of what happened to the submarine Thresher last April 10.

The photographs and a report on them were scrutinized by a naval court of inquiry investigating the cause of the tragic sinking, in which 129 persons died.

The photographs were taken last weekend some 220 miles at sea and showed pieces of paper, small lengths of wiring and bits of metal and metallic objects.

However, the Navy said the debris could not be verified as coming from the Thresher.

The court also was examining 1,600 pages of testimony taken during the inquiry. The court will offer opinions and recommendations in the loss of the nuclear attack submarine.

Israel Gives Strauss Red Carpet Welcome

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Former West German Defense Minister Franz Josef Strauss arrived in Israel Monday to a red carpet welcome instead of angry demonstrations.

His travel plans were kept secret and although groups of right-wing, would-be demonstrators waited at Lydda Airport all day Sunday, the arrival Monday night was without incident.

33 Senators Back Limited A-Ban Treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thirty-three senators—virtually one-third of the Senate membership—joined Monday in proposing that the United States offer Russia a treaty banning nuclear tests in the atmosphere and underwater.

The movement to seek a halt to contamination of the atmosphere and the oceans was led by Sens. Thomas J. Dodd of Connecticut and Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, two Democrats who have differed sharply in the past over proposals to ban nuclear tests.

Joining them as cosponsors of a resolution introduced by Dodd were 25 other Democrats and six Republicans.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, of New York, one of the Republican signers, said he hopes the Senate will close ranks behind the proposal. He said the extent of the support behind it indicates there will be sufficient votes in the Senate to ratify a safeguarded comprehensive test-ban treaty.

Sen. Kenneath B. Keating of New York, another Republican cosponsor, said the proposal should be acceptable to the Soviet Union "if the Soviets are really concerned to put an end to the peril of fallout."

"If they are prepared to go along, it would be a tremendous breakthrough for the whole human race," Keating told the Senate. "If they refuse, at least it should be clear to the world where the blame lies."

The resolution would not attempt to restrict underground testing or test shots fired in outer space that would not contaminate the atmosphere. It stipulates that if he Soviets refuse to sign this first step agreement, "We commit ourselves before the world to conduct no nuclear tests in the atmosphere or underwater so long as the Soviet Union abstains from them."

Separated Siamese Twin Rodney Brodie Dies At 11

FERRIS, Ill (AP)—Rodney Dee Brodie, who for more than 10 years survived a surgical separation from his head-joined Siamese twin brother, died Sunday at the age of 11.

The other twin, Roger Lee, died 34 days after the operation which was performed Dec. 17, 1952 when the twins were 15 months old.

They were born Sept. 16, 1951 at Rock Island, Ill., to Royt and Marjorie Brodie, who had four normal children in earlier single births.

Rodney's survival of the 12-hour, 40-minute separation at University of Illinois Research Hospital in Chicago was possible because he retained the single sagittal vein — a major blood drainage vessel for the brain — which the joined twins had shared.

Rodney, although cheerful and active, never developed quite normally. Aside from the lack of a boney cover at the top of his head beneath the scalp, he had coordination troubles.

Blood leakage developed deep in the brain, and his head had to be tapped to relieve pressure of fluid accumulations. His balance sense deteriorated and coordination of his movements grew worse. Finally, he became unable to swallow food, or to take steps without holding someone's hand.

He was the first head-joined Siamese twin to survive for a significant period a surgical separation. Two sets of twins similarly joined died as the result of surgical parting. One of the cases occurred in Brazil in 1949 and the other in Tasmania in 1950.

'Deliberate' Speed Not Swift Enough

High Court Also Refuses To Hear Gov. Wallace Suit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court warned still-segregated public schools Monday it will tolerate no avoidable delay in their obeying its 1955 decree which ordered integration with "all deliberate speed."

The court did so in ruling that the "all deliberate speed" guideline does not permit any further delay in integrating parks and other city recreational facilities in Memphis, Tenn.

Unanimously, the tribunal pointed out that eight years have passed since the second school segregation decision. The court declared it would not tolerate further delay "unless it imperatively and compellingly appeared unavoidable."

That new integration timetable was not defined any further. But the court did say that school desegregation plans that might have been acceptable eight years ago may not be acceptable now.

This follow-up to the historic 1954 and 1955 school desegregation decisions was enunciated at length by Justice Arthur A. Goldberg. He did so in five pages of a 12-page decision telling Memphis that denial to Negroes of "the use of city facilities solely because of their race is without warrant."

Plan Would Run To 1970

A group of Negroes had appealed to the court to hasten Memphis' desegregation of recreational facilities under a program not due for completion until 1970. Goldberg agreed.

"Desegregation of park and other recreational facilities does not present the same kinds of cognizable difficulties inhering in elimination of racial classification in schools," he said, "at which attendance is compulsory, the adequacy of teachers and facilities crucial, and the question of geographic assignment often of major significance."

Then he turned to school integration and said it was "never contemplated that the concept of 'deliberate speed' would countenance indefinite delay" in integration.

Handing down important actions in the racial integration turmoil for the second week in a row, the court also:

—Rejected unanimously a request by Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama that the court prohibit President Kennedy's use of federal troops in dealing with racial unrest in Birmingham.

Charged "Dictatorship"

Wallace's petition accused Kennedy of creating a "military dictatorship." It said the President had violated the Constitution by sending 3,000 federal troops to military posts near Birmingham without a request for help from state officials.

The governor asked the court to declare unconstitutional the statute under which the President acted and to rule nuil and void the

Nixon Rules Out 1964 GOP Draft

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Former Vice-President Richard M. Nixon said Monday night he would under no circumstances consider a draft for the Republican nomination for president in 1964.

Nixon made the statement at an informal news conference prior to attending a dinner in his honor at an exclusive businessmen's club. His host was Frank Rackley, president of Jessop Steel Co. of nearby Washington, Pa.

Nixon touched on various other topics in an interview before the reception.

He said if the Cuban picture did not change for the better by next year it could be the decisive factor in the defeat of the Kennedy administration.

Speaking on the racial problems in the South Nixon said, "We in the North instead of pointing a finger at the South should look to our own problems."

When asked to consider the possible candidates for the Republican presidential nomination Nixon said that Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona showed great strength throughout states he visited.

Nixon also said that Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania would be a likely candidate in view of his experiences in the State Department, Congress and his present status as governor.

6 Die In 15-Vehicle Jersey Crash

Chain Reaction Wreck Leaves Seven Injured

ELIZABETH, N. J. (AP) — Twelve trucks and three passenger cars, their drivers groping through dense fog, collided on the New Jersey Turnpike Monday, leaving six dead and seven injured.

The chain-reaction crash was the worst in the 11½-year history of the superhighway.

All the dead were truck drivers. Some bodies had to be pried from the mass of twisted metal.

Two of the injured were admitted to local hospitals in fair condition.

Huge trucks were shoved off the ground by vehicles that smashed into them.

Cargoes of frozen fish, copper tubing, chickens, potatoes, tar and fuel oil blanketed the six-lane toll road.

Rescue workers, using the lights of fire engines in the predawn fog, labored as if in the midst of a junk yard.

The dead were Blake St. Marie, 34, Sarnia, Ont.; Charles L. Hatch, 35, Richmond, Va.; William V. Sensel, 40, Baltimore, Md.; Ronald D. Pyle, 27, Butler, Pa.; George J. Anderson, 46, Jackson, Mich.; and George F. Smith, 30, Glen Burnie, Md.

State police said in a preliminary report that the first collision occurred in the northbound lane between Newark and Elizabeth at 3 a.m., about an hour after a thick fog settled on the road.

Police said a truck driven by Y. B. Coates of Roseboro, N.C., was traveling between 45 and 50 miles an hour and slowed to 35 m.p.h. or less after Coates saw an overhead sign warning of the fog. Visibility suddenly dropped to less than five feet, police said, and Coates applied his brakes sharply.

Coates' vehicle was then pushed 75 feet after it was struck in the rear by a tractor-trailer driven by Dillard G. Robinson, 26, of Siler City, N.C. The two trucks rammed a Volkswagen driven by Samuel Baker, 47, of Phillipsburg, N.J., and, after the three vehicles skidded another 75 feet, the car was sent tumbling into weeds off the shoulder of the road.

The pileup of ten more trucks and two cars followed at the scene of the two halted tractor-trailers.

2,500 Attend Dryfoos Rites

NEW YORK (AP) — Orvil E. Dryfoos, president and publisher of the New York Times, was buried Monday after a brief funeral. He died Saturday of heart failure at the age of 50.

More than 2,500 persons, including prominent government officials, newspaper publishers and television executives, attended the services at Temple Emanu-El.

At the request of Dryfoos' widow, the eulogy was delivered by James Reston, Washington correspondent of the Times.

"Perhaps the simplest thing to say about him—and I believe I speak for my colleagues in this—is that the more we knew him, the more we respected him. He was a gentleman. He was faithful to a noble tradition, to the family from which he came, and to the great family he joined and loved," Reston said.

After the 25-minute service, Dryfoos' body was taken to Hastings-on-Hudson, N.Y., for private burial in Temple Israel Cemetery.

GOP And Demo Senators Offer New Farm Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Four senators—two from each party—introduced a new one-package farm bill Monday to replace existing legislation on both feed grains and wheat.

The measure, supported by the American Farm Bureau Federation, was introduced by Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, with Sens. George D. Aiken, R-Vt.; Clinton P. Anderson, D-N.M., and Spessard L. Holland, D-Fla., as co-sponsors.

The bill would repeal the feed grain law which President Kennedy signed last week just before the wheat referendum in which growers rejected the administration's acreage control program. It also would remove the secretary of agriculture's authority to conduct another wheat referendum next year.

Hickenlooper, Aiken and Holland are members of the Senate Agriculture Committee. Anderson is a former secretary of agriculture.

As explained by Hickenlooper, the bill would repeal authority for the agriculture secretary to set wheat acreage allotments or marketing quotas.

Beginning next year, wheat prices would be supported at the average world market price for the three preceding marketing years or 50 per cent of parity, whichever is higher. Hickenlooper said the world market price is now about $1.35 a bushel and 50 per cent of parity about $1.25 per bushel.

Also beginning in 1964, Hickenlooper said, feed grain acreage allotments and price supports would be abolished and supports set at 90 per cent of average prices for the three preceding years or 50 per cent of parity, whichever is higher. Half of parity would be about 81 cents per bushel. The average current price for feed grains is about $1 a bushel.

Labrador Stop Made By Copter

GOOSE BAY, Labrador (AP)—A U.S. Air Force twin-turbine helicopter landed safely at 3:22 p.m. Monday, completing the second leg of a 3,511-mile transatlantic flight.

The helicopter, with three Air Force captains aboard, began its journey at Otis Air Force Base, on Cape Cod, Mass., and flew to Loring Air Force Base, Maine, on the first leg of the journey.

Stops also are scheduled for Greenland and Scotland.

The CH3B helicopter is equipped with two extra 500-gallon fuel tanks to enable it to fly 14 hours without refueling.

Strip Teaser Goes On Trial In Doctor Death

BALTIMORE (AP)—A 21-year-old strip tease dancer made several attempts to get to the hotel room of a Filipino doctor in the hours before the doctor was killed, witnesses testified in Youth Court Monday.

The dancer, Maxine Gross, who came to Baltimore from Buffalo, N.Y., went on trial Monday on charges of murdering Dr. Deo-Gracias DeLeon, 29, of Manila, whose burned and beaten body was found in the shower stall of a fifth floor hotel room Nov. 25.

Dr. DeLeon had been chief resident in obstetrics and gynecology at St. Joseph's Hospital here. Miss Gross, whose professional name is Vicki Storm, danced at an East Baltimore nightclub which, evidence showed, the doctor frequented on weekends. She had been registered in a room on the first floor of the hotel where Dr. DeLeon had checked in.

Steven Vaclavik, who said he met Dr. DeLeon while working at the hospital, testified that he, Dr. DeLeon, a dancer known as Dolly Mack and Miss Gross had an early morning breakfast after they left the nightclub bar at closing time. Dr. DeLeon and Miss Gross left in the doctor's car from Vaclavik's house after breakfast the night before the slaying, Vaclavik said.

Alfred B. Morris Jr., the night clerk at the hotel, and Louis Green, the hotel manager, both testified they each stopped Miss Gross from going up to Dr. DeLeon's room. They said Miss Gross was not allowed above the first floor because her room was on that floor.

Railroads, Five Unions Shelve Firemen Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)—The railroads and five operating unions temporarily laid aside the key issue of unneeded firemen Monday and began discussion of other points in their dispute over railroad work rules.

They have until June 12 to reach agreement in the controversy or a nationwide rail strike may result.

A spokesman said Monday's action didn't mean they were close to agreement on the question of removing some 40,000 firemen from freight and yard trains, but only that the negotiators had decided temporary to move to other problems.

The bargaining centered around the makeup of road crews traveling between different divisions of a railroad.

Basis for the last ditch negotiations is the report earlier this month of a presidential emergency board which called for gradual elimination of the firemen by attrition, as they retire, die or switch to other jobs.

The railroads contend that outdated work rules — they call them "featherbedding" — cost some $600 million annually in unnecessary operating costs.

The battle began almost four years ago when the railroads demanded authority to revise the work rules to keep pace with technological improvements.

U.S. 'Heart' Gives Greek Boy New Lease On Life

WASHINGTON (AP)—A 10-year-old Greek boy entered the National Institute of Health clinical center Monday for a delicate heart operation.

The lad is Nicholas Karavitis, son of Prof. Panagiotis Karavitis, head of the Greek-American Institute in Messina. The two arrived here Sunday night from Greece.

On hand to greet them at National Airport was Mrs. Richard Bolling, wife of the Missouri Democratic congressman, and Ted Venetoulis, aide to Rep. Carlton R. Sickles, D-Md. The boy and his father stayed with the Bollings Sunday night.

Physicians at NIH after admitting the youngster said he is expected to undergo a week of diagnostic study before surgery to correct a congenital heart defect. If let unattended the condition likely would cause the boy's death in three or four years, Venetoulis said.

The story began a few weeks ago, as Sickles' aide outlined it, when Mrs. Bolling received a letter from her brother, Arthur Stratton, who is a writer now living in Greece. Stratton told of his friendship with the elder Karavitis and of his concern about Nichols.

"It seems they could not perform the needed operation in Greece," Venetoulis said. "When they suggested Johns Hopkins Hospital, Bolling's office turned to us since it is in our district.

"We checked up and learned the operation there would cost $3,000."

Observing that he is of Greek background, Venetoulis said a plea was made to Greek-Americans living in the Baltimore area for funds. He said Rep. John Brademas, D-Ind., also of Greek background, joined in the cause and helped spread the appeal nation-wide.

"We received contributions, but not enough," added Venetoulis. "Then we thought of the possibility of getting the boy into the NIH.

"When the doctors there learned that his case was of a nature that would provide still much needed knowledge, they agreed he was eligible for admission. The NIH will pay all the boy's expenses at the hospital, including the operation."

An airline provided the boy and his father with free transportation, said Venetoulis. The lad's mother remained in Messina to take care of her other children.

Deserter Who Hid For 15 Years Jailed

ATHENS, Greece (AP)—A soldier who surfaced after hiding 15 years in his brother's basement was sentenced to jail Monday as a deserter.

Aristides Pagalis, 43, got 18 months for deserting his unit during a battle against Communist guerrillas.

The army had assumed he had gone over to the Reds, until police found him in the cellar last month. He had been sentenced to death in absentia. The Monday sentence supersedes the earlier one.

Unruly College Students Seized

VIRGINIA CITY, Mont. (AP)—A raucous crowd of college students descended Saturday on historic Virginia City, and police using dogs arrested about 50 for causing disturbances.

Estimates of the number of students partying in this restored ghost town ranged as high as 2,200.

Authorities said most were from Montana State College in Bozeman, about 50 miles away.

The students reportedly came to Virginia City on a false report free beer was being served in connection with the community's 100th anniversary Sunday.

Virginia City, once the state capital in gold rush days, now has about 200 year around residents.

Johnson Defense Rests Case At Influence Trial

BALTIMORE (AP) — The defense of former Maryland Congressman Thomas F. Johnson to charges he was paid to use his influence for an indicted savings and loan operator was completed Monday.

George Cochran Doub, Johnson's lawyer, wound up his case by dropping an effort to have an expert testify on what would have been a reasonable fee for the former congressman to receive for legal services.

Joseph D. Tydings, U.S. attorney, objected to what services the witnesses should assume were as a lawyer.

The issue is paramount in the trial which entered its eighth week before U.S. District Judge Roszel Thomsen and a jury. The government charges that Johnson and Frank W. Boykin, a former Alabama Congressman, were compensated for using their official position in behalf of J. Kenneth Edlin, convicted savings and loan operator.

Johnson insists he was paid in a lawyer's capacity.

Edward Bennett Williams began the defense of Boykin after Johnson rested.

The cases for Edlin and William L. Robinson, his associate, will follow. All four defendants are accused of conspiring to defraud the government of the right to conduct its business without interference.

The indictments claim that visits to the Justice Department were intended to seek dismissal of a mail fraud indictment against Edlin. He subsequently served five months in prison.

Doub summoned Walter C. Mylander, Baltimore attorney, as Johnson's last witness. Mylander said he specialized in real estate.

Doub asked him to assume that all previous testimony by Johnson and Robinson was true and to give his opinion on what a fair fee for Johnson's legal work was. Johnson and Robinson both testified the Maryland congressman was retained as a lawyer for Edlin's interests.

Tydings objected, saying Mylanders should first tell the jury which statements he believed and which he did not. After a bench conference, Doub dropped his question.

The first witness for Boykin was Charles L. Hanowell, a realty appraiser from Arlington, Va. He had appraised a tract of land near Waldorf, Md., owned by Boykin and which also figures in the government case.

It claims sale of the land to Edlin interests was part of the conspiracy.

Negroes Break Racial Truce

CAMBRIDGE (AP) — An interracial truce was broken Monday as 12 Negro high school students picketed the board of education office. All were arrested.

Police said the students, seven boys and five girls, carried placards and sang as they marched before the school board office.

They were arrested, police said, when they refused to disperse. Charges against them include disorderly conduct and disturbing the peace.

Authorities said the students left classes at the all-Negro Mace's Lane High School without permission. Ten have been given three-day suspensions by the school superintendent, James G. Busick.

The demonstration was the first since mid-May when a committee of white citizens, headed by Circuit Court Judge W. Laird Henry Jr., negotiated an end to seven straight weeks of protests against segregation in which some 150 were arrested.

The Negroes at the time promised to end demonstrations if racial barriers were lowered.

Lawyers Settle Bug-Bite Case Against B&O

CLEVELAND (AP(— Attorneys have reached a settlement in the bug-bite case in which a common pleas court jury awarded the late James T. Gallick a $625,000 judgment against the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad for the loss of his legs. One guess placed the amount of the settlement at $475,000.

Alexander H. Hadden, an attorney for the railroad, confirmed Monday that a settlement had been reached and would be presented to probate court for approval. He refused to disclose the amount, but when questioned about the $475,000 figure he said he was "not in a position to deny the accuracy of it."

Gallick, 61, died last March in Highland View Hospital, where he had been a patient since 1958. His widow will receive the cash after payment of medical and hospital bills and lawyer fees.

The total amount due from the railroad would have been about $750,000 — the amount for which Gallick sued — including the interest due since the common pleas court jury made the award in June, 1959.

Gallick claimed the railroad was negligent in having him work near a stagnant pool on railroad premises where he was bitten by an insect in August, 1954. He claimed the bite caused an infection which resulted in the amputation of his legs.

A Real Problem

MEMPHIS (AP) — Furniture dealer E. O. Baker will never forget a recent customer who ordered a mattress.

When he delivered it she looked it over and shook her head regretfully.

"The ticking doesn't match my son's hair," she said. "I couldn't possibly take it."

And she didn't.

Maryland News In Brief

BALTIMORE (AP) — There were 1,112,800 persons employed in Maryland last month, a record number for April, the Department of Employment Security reported Monday.

The high rate of employment caused a corresponding drop of 26.7 per in jobless benefits from Marcy. Stephen C. Cromwell, executive director, reported payment to the unemployed of $3,427,768 in April was $1.2 million less than the previous month.

Unemployment in Baltimore alone last month dropped 8,800. The 33,700 still out of work represented 4.6 per cent of the available work force, the lowest rate in the city since December of 1957.

GAMBRILLS, Md. (AP) — The death Monday of Soloman Ray Harrell Jr., 34, of Lanham raised Maryland's motor vehicle fatality count for 1963 to 227. It was 189 a year ago this time.

Harrell was killed when his car left Maryland 3 while passing a truck.

BALTIMORE (AP) — The University of Maryland appeared victor Monday over Johns Hopkins University for a new city morgue.

Mayor McKeldin said he favored locating it on the downtown campus of the University of Maryland. A bill authorizing the $900,000 building at Johns Hopkins died in the outgoing City Council last week.

It had been favored by the Planning Commission, the old Board of Estimates and the chief medical examiner.

BALTIMORE (AP) — A state police check of military bases and a multi-state alarm failed Monday to turn up two men in Army uniform reported to have assaulted a member of the Women's Army Corps.

The WAC stationed at Ft. Meade said she was forced into a car by the two men Sunday morning in Baltimore, driven outside the city and attacked. She said she was let out of the compact foreign built car on Route 7 near White Marsh in Baltimore County.

She was picked up by a woman motorist and taken to state police barracks at Bel Air. A physician confirmed she had been assaulted.

Bay Line's Revival Held Not Feasible

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — An evaluation of the proposed revival of steamship service between Norfolk and Baltimore as once provided by the now defunct Old Bay Line indicates the project is not financially feasible.

Net cash deficits during the first 10 years of operation would total $4,140,000, according to a study by consulting engineer Paul E. Conrad of Wilbur Smith and Associates.

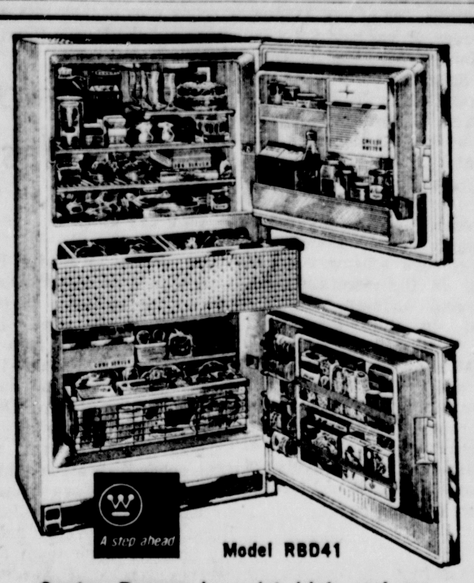

The report, prepared for the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce and the city of Norfolk at a cost of $7,500, indicated the proposed operation would not be financially self-supporting.

UNCOMMONLY COMMON

There are few things you see more frequently than the telephone. Virtually everybody has one.

This is what makes your phone so uncommonly useful.

Friends, neighbors, stores, doctors, business associates —you name it—can be reached so easily by telephone. You save time, trips to town and all kinds of trouble.

Your phone gives you convenience that's indispensable —that can often make the impossible possible.

That's why low-cost telephone service is so uncommonly high in value.

KENTUCKY STRAIGHT BOURBON WHISKEY. 86 PROOF. OLD LEWIS HUNTER DISTILLERY COMPANY, CYNTHIANA, KENTUCKY.

This is not Lewis Hunter.

(We thought it was.)

On every bottle of Old Lewis Hunter Bourbon there is an empty picture frame. It will stay empty until we find a picture of Lewis Hunter.

Mr. Hunter is the creator of a unique whiskey. We're proud of it; we think there is no bourbon like it in the country. (A good Kentucky straight, it is distilled today in the old way, on the same land, using the same limestone waters.)

We'd like to thank Mr. Hunter in the only way we can. By putting his picture on our bottle.

Until recently we thought we'd found a picture. We were wrong. Nevertheless we feel there is, somewhere, an authentic likeness of our Lewis Hunter.

Does anyone in Maryland have it? Will you check your attic? Old trunks? The family album? If you think you can help, here are some facts to go on.

Lewis Hunter was born in Virginia in 1829, the youngest of four brothers. In the early 1830's Mary Ann, his widowed mother, brought the boys to Kentucky. In 1835 she married a prosperous landowner named David Blackburn. They lived on a comfortable acreage on the South Licking River, near the town of Cynthiana, county of Harrison.

In 1854, when he was 25, Lewis acquired a wife named Mariah.

In 1859 he also acquired land. And in 1861 he opened "The Lewis Hunter Mill and Distillery", producing a barrel a day of a better-than-good whiskey.

In 1868, he sold out to George R. Sharpe.

And in 1880, bag, baggage and with their children, Lewis and Mariah Hunter disappeared.

There was not a Hunter in Harrison County after that. Records show there isn't a Hunter there today.

Where did Lewis go? Maryland in those days was a major distilling center; did he settle here to try again? If anyone knows...if you have a picture of a man you have reason to think is Lewis Hunter, may we have it?

If it can be authenticated, we will pay you $500 for the right to put it on our bottle. Ask your liquor dealer for more information on Mr. Hunter. If you find a picture, send it to The Old Lewis Hunter Distillery, Cynthiana, Kentucky. You must include enough facts to help establish its authenticity. We can't be responsible for photographs, so if yours is valuable, please send a copy. We will need the original only when and if your Lewis Hunter proves to be ours.

$4.70 the fifth.

Iraq Mountaineers Plan New Revolt

By ELIE MAISSI

PARIS (UPI) — Tough Kurdish mountaineers of northern Iraq are planning a new revolt against the Baghdad government, according to reports reaching western diplomatic sources here.

The Iraqi government was reported to have moved strong forces toward the north to deal with the expected new uprising.

The Kurds, who are Moslems but not Arabs, have been in periodic revolt against the Baghdad government for years.

After Gen. Abdul Karim Kassem's regime was overthrown by a military uprising last February, Kurdish leaders called off the rebellion in exchange for a promise of internal autonomy.

But reports reaching here said the situation has become tense again.

The Kurds were said to be complaining bitterly that the new Baghdad regime of President Abdul Salam Mohammed Aref is dragging its heels on internal self-government for them.

Recently, it was reported here, Kurdish guerrillas have come down from their mountains and are beseiging many large towns in the Kurdish areas.

The rebels were said to control most main roads. Some Iraqi government forces were said to have been under siege in their own barracks.

The Baghdad government, according to reports here, was divided on steps needed to deal with the threatened new flareup.

The air force was reported to favor strong retaliatory operations, including bombing of Kurdish villages.

Army commanders were said to favor more cautious action.

The new Baghdad government was reported to be holding many Kurdish nationalist in jail after releasing a number of imprisoned Communists.

The release of Communists reportedly was aimed at wooing support from the Reds in the new government's struggle against pro-Nasserite forces in Iraq.

Revolts by Kurdish guerrillas have worried the Baghdad government for years because the big Kurkuk oilfields are located in the area inhabited by the Kurds.

Preliminary Test

HARDIN, Mont. (AP) — You have to pass a minor fitness test to get a job on the multimillion dollar Yellowtail Dam being built on the Big Horn River near the Montana-Wyoming border.

A sign near the contractor's trailer at the remote dam site reads:

"No private cars beyond this point.

"If you can't walk from here to employment office, you can't pass the physical anyway."

Turkish To Burley

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The year 1913 was a bright one for burley tobacco farmers. It was then that the first cigarettes containing a substantial amount of burley were marketed and promoted heavily. Before that time, most cigarettes were made almost entirely of aromatic leaf, the "Turkish" type.

Mistaken Identity

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — Alan Britton of Hot Springs was hunting deer near here when he thought he saw another hunter aiming a gun at him.

"Don't shoot!" Britton yelled, jumping from his brushy cover into a clearing.

"He looked at me strangely," Britton said. "The finest buck I've ever seen. Then he charged into a thicket and was gone."

New African Unity Faces Problems

By GEORGE MCARTHUR

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) —The Organization of African Unity created by the Addis Ababa summit conference is an infant child unable yet to carry out its high-sounding goals.

Although 30 African chiefs of state signed the charter to emotional cries and high drama early Sunday the organization will remain a piece of paper, and little more, for some time.

First, the charter must be ratified by two-thirds of the states before becoming effective.

This was a legal dodge for most of the African chiefs present. They rule on-party governments at home and their word is virtually law—if they want it to be.

What will the organization be like when two-thirds of the states do ratify the charter?

The main provision is that the charter sets up a council of chiefs of state to meet once yearly. This council retains virtually all power, and resolutions can be passed only by a two-thirds vote of the member states, not two-thirds of those voting.

There is no provision for enforcement of any resolution and the question of what to do with noncomplying members is unresolved.

The charter leaves unresolved also who shall be the first secretary general. It says he shall be appointed by the chiefs of state. Possibly this could take another year, thus stalling the organization for that time.

Indeed, there were delegates in Addis Ababa who privately want no haste at all. President Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia publicly called for a step-by-step approach and President Felix Houphouet-Boigny of the Ivory Coast asked for "progressive caution."

Such caution is built into the charter. In its immediate form it is little more than an agreement for yearly meetings at the summit.

Met With Open Arms?

JUPITER ISLAND, Fla. (AP)— The welcome the near-shipwrecked trio received here was not exactly what they had hoped for. Their boat had been raked by fire, put out of commission and washed toward shore. As the boat neared safety, a man ran onto the beach firing a gun into the air shouting, "Get away. You can't land here."

The story ended on a happy note with a safe landing and no one shot.

Pudgy British Pilots Must Slim Down

MANCHESTER, England (UPI) —Britain's pudgy pilots were told Sunday to slim down or stop flying.

A Ministry of Aviation spokesman here said a two-month campaign against overweight commercial airline pilots had resulted in the grounding of "several" pilots and diets for others.

The aim of the drive, he said, is to cut the risk of pilots suffering heart attacks during a flight.

The principal targets, the spokesman said, are veteran pilots over 40 who are more prone to weight problems than younger fliers.

"We have warned all our pilots to watch their figures," a British Overseas Airways Corp. (BOAC) spokesman said.

British European Aireays (BEA) confirmed that at least one of their pilots had been grounded.

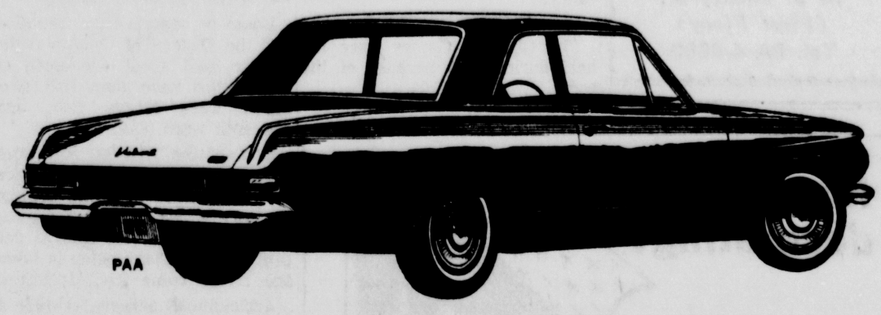

The International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO) said here that a new rule, coming into effect in September, will force all pilots in its member nations to have electrocardiogram tests.

Pilots over 40 must take the tests once every two years, the ICAO said. Pilots under 40 must take them once every five years.

Woman To Woman

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pistol packin' mamas movin' west years ago knew how to care for their hardware—guns on which their lives might depend.

But how times change!

A contemporary miss in southwestern United States now blazes trails by being an expert in software.

Nancy Lee Tafel, of Phoenix, Ariz., is a pioneer programmer in the commercial computer business.

About her forte—softwear—she said:

"It consists of computer programs designed to help the computer opeate at its top efficiency and at the lowest cost to the user.

"Softwear directs the computer operations in an orderly sequence of relatively simple steps at virtually incomprehensivle speeds to solve problems which only a few years ago taxed the best engineering, scientific, business and banking brains."

In today's highly competitive market the providing of good, reliable software by the computer manufacturer is considered as important as furnishing the best records one puts on it.

"The finest computer is no better than the software designed for it," Miss Tafel added.

From calculating cake-mix formulas to testing space missiles to studying the human nervous system,her softwear know-how helps her boss at General Electric's computer center in Phoenix meet the needs for a broad range of challenges.

How does a young woman sterr herself toward a successful career in the computer territory?

"Study the business thoroughly, plan your approach carefully, set your sights accurately, aim calmly and speak and work precisely" —that's the formula Nancy recommends.

Miss Tafel holds a bachelor of arts degree in English and humanities from the University of Louisville Kentucky.

Before getting into computer work she taught English.

The pioneer in the fast-growing computer business said ther's a place for women of management caliber in the computer field.

Water Pollution Killed 7,000,000 Fish Last Year

By DANIEL F. KELLY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nearly seven million fish were killed last year by factory and city wastes and agricultural poisons dumped into the nation's rivers and lakes, the Public Health Service (PHS) reported Sunday.

Based on reports from 36 states and the District of Columbia, the service said about one-fourth of those killed were game fish, two-thirds were forage fish, and one-tenth were trash fish.

Most of the 7,118,000 fish were poisoned in rivers, the service said. It blamed domestic sewage for the greatest number of deaths. However, the service said 53 per cent of the contamination in lakes and rivers came from factories.

Agricultural poisons — like a chemical that was dropped into a creek after an airplane sprayed a cotton field — killed slightly more than 91,000 fish. In 1961, such poisons were the chief cause of fish kills.

Mine Drainage Kills Many

Mining operations exterminated another 694,932. In one case, the service said, fish valued at $36,764.60 were poisoned when acid mine drainage got into a stream.

While the health service did not generally name particular companies or cities as contamination sources, a weekend report from a congressional committee blamed the federal government for about 3 per cent of the total national water pollution.

Rep. Robert E. Jones, D-Ala., chairman of a House government operations subcommittee, said after a week's investigation of the problem that while the government warned industry and cities about dumping their wastes, it was doing the same thing.

He said 1,003 federal facilities in every state were getting rid of wastes by dumping them in waterways or on the ground.

However, the committee has heard testimony that industry accounts for more than 50 per cent of the national water pollution while local communities contribute 45 per cent.

One unusual case of local sewage affecting pollution was cited in the PHS fish report. More than 3 million fish were killed in the Anacostia River near Washington, D.C., last September when 40 million gallons of raw sewage were dumped into the river.

The largest fish kill ever reported to the health service was not used in compiling the statistics. Off the coast of California near the San Diego harbor entrance, an estimated 37,800,000 dead anchovies weighing 945 tons were found last August.

After extensive chemical analysis of the fish and the poisoned water, health authorities blamed processed fish oil for the deaths. But, "no sound reason" was found for dumping the oil in such large quantities, the PHS said.

"Even after extensive investigation the source of the material remains unknown," the report said.

Loses Job

NEW ROMNEY, England (UPI)—Douglas Gilham lost his appointment as mayor's sergeant Monday because he had outgrown the 25-year-old black and gold uniform. Mayor James Ellis apologized and said, "We are not as rich as we used to be in the days when we were the smuggling center of Britain."

Visit Soviet Plant

MOSCOW (UPI) — A group of U. S. scientists led by Glenn T. Seoborg, Atomic Energy Commission chairman, Monday visited a new Soviet atomic research center in Ulyanovsk, the Tass news agency reported. The delegation is visiting Russia at invitation of Andronic Petrosyants, chairman of the U.S.S.R. State Committee on Atomic Energy.

Mail fraud convictions by the government the last fiscal year totaled a record 524. Investigations resulted in the restitution of $1,414,000 to intended victims.

Khrushchev Feels He Cannot Retire

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Will Nikita Khrushchev retire? The chances are that he feels he cannot, right now.

At his official farewell reception for Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro, the Soviet premier poked fun at Western speculation that he might be ready to step aside.

Khrushchev has acknowledged he cannot go on forever. He is 69 and has had a tough life.

But to reports he was in a bad position he retorted piously last Thursday: "May God grant I have such a difficult position to the end of my days."

There is in this a hint that Khrushchev feels he must hang on indefinitely until the question of succession can be resolved.

There doesn't seem to be anybody on the horizon with sufficient stature and qualifications to succeed him. His once anointed heir-apparent is now badly ill and probably out of the picture for good.

To step aside now could mean to risk throwing the Soviet leadership up for grabs, involving serious political infighting and perhaps even clashes between the civilians and the military.

The Soviet Communist power structure today has a flimsy look compared to what it was in Stalin's time or even during the earlier days of the Khrushchev era.

Stalin wielded his enormous power through simultaneous control of the party Secretariat, the vast and powerful secret police network and a compliant Politburo.

Khrushchev's power stemmed from the sufferance of a collective leadership thrown together at first in a spirit of mutual protection after Stalin died. With secret police power curbed, centers of authority became the party Presidium—successor to the Politburo—the Central Committee and the committee's Secretariat.

Khrushchev diminished the power of the ruling Presidium in 1957 when he outfoxed those who wanted to get rid of him—the group headed by V. M. Molotov and Georgi Malenkov. To defeat them Khrushchev turned to the Central Committee, using it with all the skill of an oldtime ward politician running a bunch of aldermen.

This invested the Central Committee as such with much more authority than it had enjoyed. In some respects, men in the once rarefied atmosphere of the Presidium began to look like creatures of the Central Committee and its Secretariat. Meanwhile, power was further diffused in both party and government in Khrushchev's decentralization measures to step up Soviet production.

The Presidium was weakened a bit more in 1960 in a deep shakeup by which Khrushchev eliminated some warhorses who might have been troublesome. Frol R. Kozlov was in control of the Secretariat under Khrushchev and emerged as the heir-apparent either as party boss or premier—perhaps both.

But Kozlov at 55 is ill. Evidently with a thrombosis. What about the other prospects?

A likely place to look is the party Secretariat of eight members. Four are not members of the top party Presidium. Khrushchev is one of the other four. Of the remaining three, Kozlov is already ruled out; Otto V. Kuussinen is 82, leaving Mikhail A. Suslov, 60.

Suslov once was Stalin's top Communist theoretician and considered later an ideological foe of Khrushchev. He is a grimly colorless man who could be an ally of the one striving for the top job but unlikely to aspire to it himself.

The other springboard is the Presidium. Besides Khrushchev it has 11 members, including Suslov, Kozlov and Kuussinen, who seem ruled out. Another is ailing, 69-year-old Anastas I. Mikoyan, a holdover from the Stalin Politburo who is not considered a candidate. Another Presidium member, Nikolai Shvernik, is sick and 75.

That leaves six possibilities. The lightning could strike any one of these, notably Leonid I. Brezhnev, 57, a former armed forces political commissar who now is president of the U.S.S.R., and Gennady I. Voronov, an agricultural specialist close to Khrushchev, who rose swiftly through party ranks.

Brezhnev comes from the Ukraine, a count against him in the power sweepstakes, and Voronov seems to lack bothstature and background.

Of the others, there are Dmitri S. Polyansky, 46, and Nikolai Podgorny, 60, both possibilities but also both Ukrainians. The remaining two are Alexei A. Kosygin, 58, an executive type and also a Stalin holdover, and Andrei P. Kirilenko, 57, an engineer. Neither seems to have the stuff that a big Soviet boss must be made of.

There are no others in the top echelon unless some military figure emerges. Khrushchev is likely to have taken steps to prevent that.

For Khrushchev to step aside now might be to invite internal confusion. He seems the sort of man who likes to keep the political house neat and tidy, who would prefer to have the succession matter settled before departing the scene.

FCC Clampdown Assured

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The new chairman of the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) hinted Sunday that tough, direct regulations may be clamped on radio and television. These may include an attempt to limit the number of "prime time" network TV shows.

E. William Henry, who succeeds Newton N. Minow as FCC chairman on June 1, said "you can rest assured of action soon" to ease the major networks' control of programming on local stations.

Henry also said the FCC for the first time is writing a policy on television and radio commercials. He said he agreed with Minow's opposition to the "clamorous casbah of pitchmen" and supported proposals for more self-discipline among broadcasters in controlling commercials.

The former Memphis, Tenn., lawyer, who was interviewed by Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., on a television program.

Hendy disclosed the FCC is studying the possibility of more direct regulation of radio and television networks.

Henry denied regulation would amount to censorship. On the contrary, he said, it would promote variety and diversity of programs and would protect the interests of the audience.

The FCC now exercises indirect control over what radio and television audiences see and hear through its power to grant and renew station licenses.

Henry did not indicate how the FCC's regulatory powers might be made more direct, or whether Congress was being asked for enabling legislation.

World Population Is Up

GENEVA (UPI)—The population of the world increased by 22 per cent during the ten years ending mid-1961, the United Nations announced Sunday.

The U. N. statistical handbook for 1962 said world population increased an average of 1.8 per cent annually over the decade, to reach an estimated 3,069,000,000 people in June, 1961.

The handbook, published Sunday, said the rate of population reached as high as 2.5 per cent each year in oceania. This however remained the world's leastly densely populated area with an average of only two persons per square kilometer.

Europe remained the most densely populated area with an average of 87 people per square kilometer while the world average stood at 23. The handbook said infant mortality fell by as much as 50 per cent in many countries over the decade.

The handbook said world trade—excluding the Communist nations—rose 4.6 percent above the 1960 level during 1961 to set a new post world war record of $134,400,000,000 heavy industrial production throughout the world meanwhile stood at over three times the 1938 level, the report said.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain — without surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by a doctor's observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all — this improvement was maintained in cases where a doctor's observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

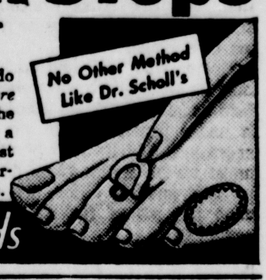

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H®. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug counters.

Party Probing GOP Candidacy For Governor

WHEELING, W. Va. (UPI) — A weekend meeting here of top Republican leaders failed to clarify the picture of who will enter the GOP race for governor and U. S. senator next year.

Both of the top possibilities for governor — Rep. Arch A. Moore Jr. of Moundsville and former Gov. Cecil H. Underwood — attended, but on different days. Thus there was no face-to-face discussion between them that might have thrown light on the plans of either.

Moore is considered to have "first refusal" for the nomination, with Underwood waiting until Moore decides before he makes his own plans.

Moore, who indicated earlier it may be October or November before he announces his plans, also is under pressure from 1st Congressional District Republicans to make up his mind. If he decides to seek another office, they will have the job of finding another candidate.

Those invited by state GOP Chairman Howard V. Corcoran to last weekend's meeting include Moore, the GOP national committeeman; Underwood; 1960 gubernatorial nominee Harold E. Neely, former state chairman Daniel L. Louchery, former U. S. Sen. Chapman Revercomb, the five state committee vice chairmen, and others.

The formal agenda called for a discussion of organization and voter registration plans, and the need to attract top candidates to fill all places on the ticket.

Underwood had a speaking engagement Friday night at Williamson and was unable to attend the initial session, when Moore was present. Moore planned to return for the Saturday meeting but was unable to do so.

served in Maryland for sewage in ditches along the road and in culverts. Gaylord Brooks, sanitarian with the County Health Department, explained that the soil along Bedford Road is not acceptable for septic systems. He said the only answer is a sewer system.

Mr. Shives also told the Bedford Road residents that the federal money for sewage systems is available only through 1966, as this was a 10-year program which started in 1957.

Leslie J. Clark, attorney to the sanitary commission, reminded the protestants than any 10 residents and land owners could appeal the sanitary commission's decision to the county commissioners if they do not like it. There was such an appeal in Bowling Green but the county commissioners sustained the sanitary commission.

Some people along Hazen Road objected to their inclusion in the sanitary district when Mr. Glass believes a sewer in their area is not now feasible.

Other members of the sanitary commission are Robert Reinhard and Alvin H. Rankin.

Three Guilty In Thefts

Three local men were found guilty in two separate petty larceny cases yesterday at a hearing in Trial Magistrates Court.

George Keller, 209 Spring Street, and Paul R. Ritter, 803 Roeth Avenue, were found guilty of petty larceny in the theft of $22.75 from the Dutch Kitchen on March 17. Magistrate F. Allan Weatherholt fined them $15 each and sentenced each to 10 days in County Jail. Sentence was suspended on condition they make restitution.

In the second case, Keller and Sam Browne, 204 Valley Street, were charged with petty larceny of beer valued at $28.28 from the Cumberland Brewing Company. Browne was found guilty, was fined $50 and sentenced to 10 days in County Jail. The jail sentence was suspended on condition of restitution, but Browne was committed to County Jail in default of fine. Keller was found not guilty.

City Detecitve Kenneth E. Morrisey investigated both cases and Detective Harry Iser investigated the beer theft. Earl E. Manges represented Keller and Browne, and Donald W. Mason, deputy state's attorney, presented the state's case.

Food Fashions For Jet Agers Sets Theme For Recipes

This is the month we pay tribute to the chicken and egg — or is it vice versa?

The Poultry and Egg National Board sidesteps this ancient controversy but it reminds us that these two mainstays on the homemaker's market list deserve the limelight at least once a year. Poultry and eggs are economical, nutritious, and the variety of dishes they lend themselves to are practically unlimited.

"Food Fashions for Jet Agers" is the theme the Poultry and Egg National Board has announced for its 15th Annual "Poultry Products Booster Day."

Tea is the delicious and delightfully new flavor fashion found in all three recipes: "Bavarian Tea Cream" "Amber Tea Sauce," and "Tea-Sugar Topping." For added speed and convenience the busy homemaker can prepare the "Barvarian Tea Cream" ahead of time. Simply pour the cream into individual paper cups or a freezer tray and freeze.

To complement this special dessert, Tea served as a beverage brings out all the subtle, interesting tea flavor.

BAVARIAN TEA CREAM

⅓ cup sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
3 tablespoons instant tea
1¼-cups milk
2 eggs separated
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 cup heavy cream, whipped

Measure sugar into top of a double boiler. Add salt, gelatin and instant tea. Mix well. Beat milk and egg yolks together and add gradually to dissolve instant tea. Stir constantly over boiling water until gelatin is completely dissolved, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat and blend in vanilla. Chill, stirring occasionally until of unbeaten egg white consistency. Add egg whites and beat until light and foamy; fold in whipped cream. Pour into a 1-quart mold and chill until firm.* Unmold on serving platter and garnish individual servings with whipped cream, "Amber Tea Sauce," "Tea-Sugar Topping." Use a combination of any of these garnishes or "the works"! Makes 6 servings.

*To make ahead of time, simply pour the cream into individual paper cups or a freezer tray and freeze.

AMBER TEA SAUCE

⅔ cup sugar
2 teaspoons instant tea
⅔ cup boiling water

Place sugar in a heavy skillet or saucepan. Stir constantly over medium heat until sugar melts to a light brown syrup. Meanwhile, dissolve instant tea in boiling water; slowly stir into caramelized sugar. Boil 6 minutes. Cool. Makes ⅔ cup sauce. Try this delicious sauce, too, over vanilla ice cream for a special dessert treat.

TEA-SUGAR TOPPING

2 tablespoons instant tea
⅓ cup sugar

Combine and sprinkle over whipped topping on "Barvarian Tea Cream." Makes approximately ⅓ cup.

"Setting" A Roast

Roasts are more easily carved if the meat is allowed to "set" 20 to 30 minutes, in a warm place, before carving.

Dill Will Give Brisk Flavor To Pot-Roast

Dill seed can become a tangy addition to meats as well as the pickles it often seasons.

Here both dill seed and dill pickle juice flavor a hearty beef pot-roast. The resulting fresh, brisk flavor certainly adds pep to your meal. You'll have a penny-pinchers dinner to entice many an appetite.

Never hurry the cooking. Slow simmering in a tightly covered heavy utensil produces a wonderfully tender, juicy meat dish.

Beef Dill Pot-Roast

3 to 4-pound beef arm or blade pot-roast
¼ cup flour
1 tablespoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
3 tablespoons lard or drippings
1 teaspoon dill seed
¼ cup pickle juice
¼ cup water
Flour for gravy, if desired.

Combine flour, salt and pepper. Dredge pot-roast in seasoned flour and brown in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Sprinkle dill seed over meat. Add dill pickle juice and water. Cover tightly and cook slowly 3 to 3½ hours or until meat is tender. Thicken cooking liquid with flour for gravy, if desired. 6 to 8 servings.

Mint Meringue Treats

Mint is traditional with leg of lamb. Here's a new manner of including this mint flavor in a garnish. Beat 1 egg white until stiff. Add ¼ cup mint jelly and continue beating until mixed. Place meringue in 4 to 5 canned cling peach or pear halves. Bake or broil until meringue is lightly browned.

Versatile Soups Star In Any Weather

Some like them hot, some like them cold. The recipes for Cheese Soup and Vichyssoise let you take your pick! On a hot summer day, serve them chilled. Or, if the temperature should fall, serve them hot.

Both soups are made with milk for extra goodness and nutrition, accompanied by a crisp, green salad and finger sandwiches, either one will provide a satisfying meal. Pick a recipe, check the weather report and then decide which way you will serve the soup—hot or cold.

Cheese Soup

1½ cups sliced onion, or 4 or 5 leeks
¼ cup butter (½ stick)
3 cups thinly sliced potatoes
1 cup hot water
4 chicken bouillon cubes
3 cups milk
1 cup thin cream, or half and half
2 cups shredded sharp American cheese
2 tablespoons chives, parsley or green onion tops.

Peel onions and slice thin or cut roots and tops from leeks, leaving 2 inches above white part and slice thin. Melt butter in a saucepan; add onions or leeks and cook slowly until tender but not brown. Add sliced potatoes, hot water, and 1 chicken bouillon cube. Cover and cook over medium heat until potatoes are tender, stirring occasionally. Press potato mixture with liquid through a sieve or blend with electric blender, adding 2 cups of the milk. Pour back into pan and add remaining milk and cream with the 3 bouillon cubes and cheese. Stir over low heat until cubes and cheese are melted. Add salt to taste and serve piping hot topped with minced chives, parsley or green onion tops. Makes 6 servings. Soup may be served chilled by adding a little extra thin cream to thin to desired consistency.

Vichyssoise

4 or 5 leeks, or 1½ cups sliced onion
¼ cup butter (½ stick)
3 cups thinly sliced potatoes
1 cup hot water
4 chicken bouillon cubes
3 cups milk
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon white pepper
⅛ teaspoon paprika
1 cup cream
2 tablespoons finely chopped chives, or minced parsley

Slice leeks thin, using only white and very light green portions and measure 1½ cups. Melt butter in a large, heavy saucepan. Add leeks; cook and stir until transparent, but not brown. Add potato slices, water and bouillon cubes; cover and cook over moderate heat until the potato slices are tender. Press through a fine sieve or puree in a blender. Return to saucepan; add milk, stirring rapidly to blend. Stir in salt, white pepper, and paprika. Add cream and heat only to serving temperature. Serve hot with garnish of chopped chives or parsley, or chill quickly and serve cold. Makes 6 servings.

Chop, Chop

"Chop" is a word that is an important part of our vocabulary as well as our weekly meat menus. Word fanciers speculate that it comes from the Dutch "kappen," meaning "to cut off." If you consider a meat cut from the standpoint of quality, you might trace it to the Hindu word "chhap," meaning "official seal, stamp of approval." Considering its ease of preparation, chop could root from the pidgin English of China where the word means "hurry up" or "fast." Whether it be pork, veal or lamb, chop means an easy and tasty way to body-building proteins, the American Meat Institute assures us.

Week's Food Economies

The Memorial Day holiday and the weekend that follows officially open the picnic and outdoor eating season. Meals for this active season are most successful when some planning is done beforehand, says Virginia L. McLuckie, foor economist in the Baltimore Office of the Departments of Markets, University of Maryland.

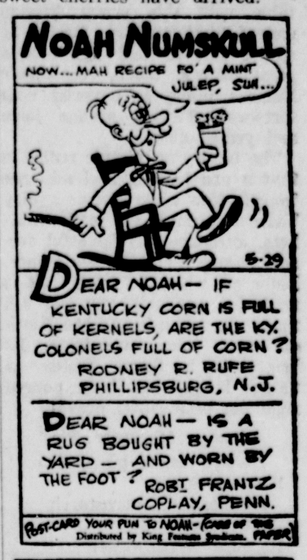

The weather will certainly be a factor in the type of activity you will enjoy but the same foods you buy will fit into meals indoors or outdoors, however your plans turn out.

The choice of meats to grill outdoors is wide. There are frankfurters, ground meat patties, ham slices, chops, steaks, bacon and poultry. The meat choice does not have to be expensive, as the markets offer a wide range of prices. Supplies of beef, fryer chicken, ham and pork products are liberal. Any meat that you can broil or roast uncovered indoors takes to outdoor cooking like a breeze.

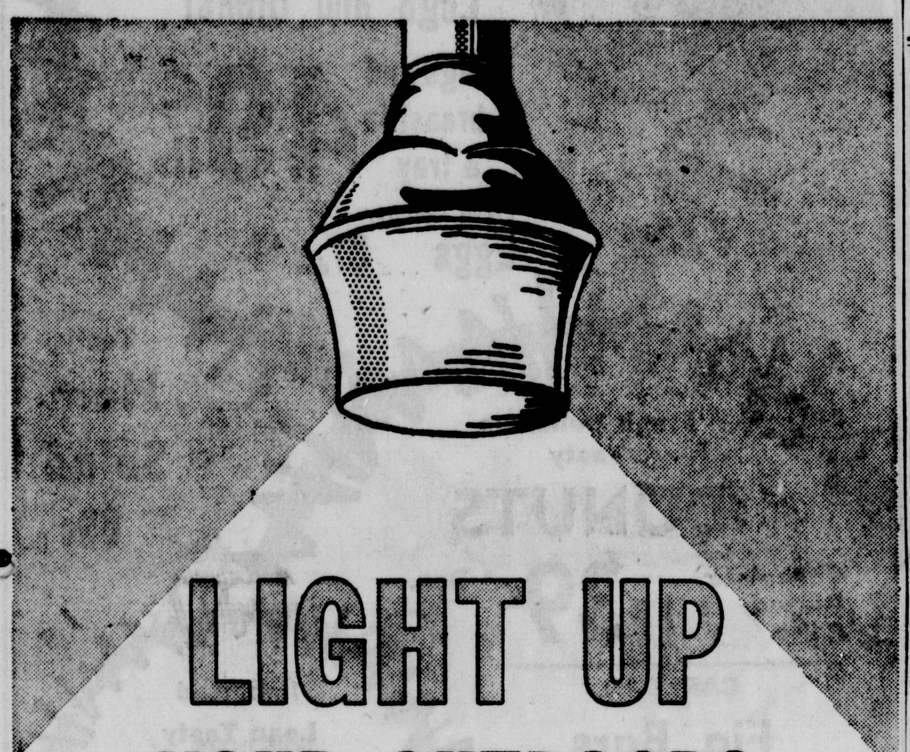

Fish often makes a good choice for outdoor meals. If you plan a picnic be sure to cool meats thoroughly before packing. Pack them in an insulated or Thermos container to keep them cold until eating. Avoid carrying mayonnaise-base salads to picnics unless they are kept under refrigeration or in a Thermos container.

Keep menus simple, for picnics and outdoor eating. Salad items that fit well into meals and also among the best buys are lettuce, cucumbers, carrots, green onions, radishes, cabbage and tomatoes. Choose the new spring crop of potatoes for the best buy. They make excellent picnic potato salad. Asparagus is another of the best buys for this week.

For desserts, fresh Maryland strawberries may used and sugared at home and carried in a plastic bag or container. Slices or wedges of fresh pineapple also make good eating. Bananas are always a picnic favorite. These are the best fresh fruit buys on the current market. North Carolina blueberries and California sweet cherries have arrived.

As Welcome As Spring: Orange Meringue Pie

Even on an April shower day you can put sunshine on your table with this sunny Florida orange meringue pie. Bright as spring flowers and light as a pussywillow's touch, the pie's luscious filling is flavored with tart-sweet Florida orange juice and grated rind.

The beauty of this pie recipe is that it can be prepared all year 'round. Now while Florida's juicy Valencia oranges are in the markets, introduce this flavorful dessert to guests at a festive dinner. Later on, when the fresh fruit is no longer available, you can still make the pie using frozen Florida orange juice concentrate. Its bright fresh flavor tastes as though it had just been poured right out of a citrus grove!

Orange Meringue Pie

1 9-inch baked pie shell
1¼ cups sugar
7 tablespoons cornstarch
½ teaspoon salt
1½ cups warm water
3 egg yolks
½ cup Florida orange juice
1 tablespoon grated Florida orange rind
¼ teaspoon lime rind
2 tablespoons butter
3 egg whites
6 tablespoons sugar
¼ teaspoon salt

Mix sugar, cornstarch and salt in heavy saucepan. Stir in warm water. Gradually bring to boil over low heat, stirring constantly; then continue to cook 8 to 10 minutes stirring constantly until mixture is smooth, clear and thick. Remove from heat. Stir several spoonfuls of hot mixture into beaten egg yolks; mix well. Pour yolks back into saucepan. Stirring, bring to boil. Add rinds and cook over low heat for 4 to 5 minutes. Remove from heat; gradually add orange juice and butter. Cool filling; pour into baked pie shell. Chill filling while making meringue, or if desired, chill filling until ready to serve and then top with meringue. Filling will be cold and meringue top warm.

Meringue: Place egg whites and salt in medium size bowl. Beat whites until soft peaks form. Add sugar slowly, 1 tablespoon at a time; beat well after each addition until stiff peaks form. Spread over cool filling, making sure to secure meringue to edges of pie shell. Bake in 425°F. (hot) oven 4 minutes or until meringue is golden.

YIELD: 1 9-inch pie.

Oriental Tuna No Mystery

The mysterious East is sometimes at its most mysterious in the matter of subtle flavoring of foods, but there's no enigma about Tuna Oriental. This superb dish combines delicate tuna in vegetable oil with crisp vegetables, and the flavor derives from Ac'cent monosodium glutamate long a favorite with those wonderful Oriental cooks. Ac'cent brings out all the flavor of the individual ingredients, combines them into a harmonious whole.

Tuna Oriental

2 cans (6½ or 7 ounces each) tuna in vegetable oil
1 cup diagonally cut celery
1 green pepper, cut in strips
1 teaspoon Ac'cent
2 tablespoons cornstarch
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1 can (can 20 ounces) pineapple chunks
2 medium tomatoes, cut in 16 wedges

Drain oil from tuna into skillet. Add celery and green pepper; cook until crisptender. Mix together cornstarch and soy sauce; stir into mixture in skillet. Drain syrup from pineapple; measure 1 cup. Add to skillet with tomatoes, and Ac'cent. Bring to a boil; boil 1 minute. Add tuna and pineapple chunks; heat to serving temperature. Serve over hot cooker rice.

YIELD: 6 servings.

Capitol Comment

by Rep. Charles Mathias

The biggest legislative news of the past week is the decision of the wheat farmers of America. They have voted resoundingly against a supply management program which had been proposed to them by Secretary of Agriculture Freeman. This leaves a vacuum in our agricultural policy which must be filled. The Secretary of Agriculture says that he will have no further suggestions for a wheat program in the coming months and the initative has reverted to the Congress to draft the policy for this vital field of American economic community.

We should go further than just wheat planning in writing legislation to take care of the situation created by the defeat of the wheat referendum. This is a great opportunity in which the Congress can make a step forward in our agricultural thinking and planning. Part of my thinking is influenced by the fact that I have been watching with great interest in the recent years the condition of the lands which have been held under trust for the people of the Nation in what is known as the "soil bank." The soil bank program retired from active agricultural use and many thousands of acres of farm land and the crops which might have been grown on those lands never went into our surplus, never became a charge upon the taxpayers for their storage and handling, and have not added to our agricultural marketing problems. It is true that the soil bank costs money, but it has been a justified expense, as is apparent when you actually go and walk upon these lands and see how they have been held as an agricultural and conservation reserve for the future. We should use some of the experience which has been gained from our use of the soil bank and start a land retirement and a soil conservation program. Such a program might be limited to 3 years rather than to the 5 or 10 years' span which was previously contemplated in the soil bank program. Under the soil use provisions a 3-year contract could be adequate. The land owner would, of course, be compensated for putting his land into retirement under this program.

We should not, however, stop at that point but ought to direct the Secretary of Agriculture to make a study of land uses throughout the United States. He should consult the Department of the Interior, the Department of Defense, the Housing and Home Financing Agency, the States, local governments, all of those who have a hand in land use, and we should develop a consistent land-use program which would go forward from current conditions to a more efficient or appropriate use for the nation's soil.

With the opportunity now given us by the defeat of the Wheat Referendum we should also at this time provide for some crop support program which would bolster up our agricultural community until the full effect of a land retirement and soil use program can be put into effect. These price supports would be at such a level as to provide disaster protection to farmers rather than at levels that provide incentives to produce more crops. It would also help meet the surplus problems we have in wheat and feed grains.

For this reason I am going to introduce a soil conserving program in the House of Representatives and I hope that it will get favorable consideration.

Fondue, Elegant Do-It-Yourself Dinner!

The most discriminating guests—those with imagination and a sense of humor, too!—will enjoy fixing their own Fondue Bourguignonne. Everyone knows the fun of dipping speared bread cubes into a dish of hot cheese fondue. This help-yourself gourmet recipe involves dipping small cubes of raw prime filet of beef into a table-size cauldron of sizzling oil and cooking to your own desired degree of doneness.

The topper in this culinary scheme is the selection of piquant sauces in which to dip the cooked beef cubes. Tabasco, the ubiquitous liquid red pepper seasoning, adds spicy zest to each of the four sauces: curry-mayonnaise, tomato-mushroom, onion - horseradish, and mustard-mayonnaise. Eating informally "comme ci" is not only fun, it's simply delicious!

Fondue Bourguignonne could be served as a conversation-piece party appetizer, or as the entree for a light supper along with a tossed green salad and hot rolls.

Set a spirit or sterno lamp in the center of the table and on top of it a small cast iron enameled, copper or brass pot containing vegetable oil, ¼ to ⅓ full. Heat the oil to 375°F. in the kitchen. During the whole procedure keep the oil sizzling hot. On a tray, place individual ramekins of sauces. In the center of the tray, put a dish containing about 4 to 6 ounces of raw, trimmed cubed prime filet of beef per person. Pierce meat with long wooden skewers or fondue forks. Holding meat in oil, brown it according to taste (10 to 30 seconds) blue, rare or well done. Dip cooked meat into sauce of choice. Meanwhile, spear another cube of meat and place in oil.

Curry Sauce

½ cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons milk
1 tablespoon curry powder
¼ teaspoon Tabasco

Combine all ingredients. Refrigerate until ready to serve. Makes about ½ cup sauce.

Tomato-Mushroom Sauce

⅔ cup catsup
2 tablespoons chopped cooked or canned mushrooms
¼ teaspoon Tabasco

Combine all ingredients. Refrigerate until ready to serve. Makes about ½ cup sauce.

Onion-Horseradish Sauce

¼ cup chopped onion
1 tablespoon horseradish
1 tablespoon water
¼ teaspoon Tabasco

Combine all ingredients. Makes about ½ cup sauce.

Mustard Sauce

¼ cup prepared mustard
¼ cup mayonnaise
1 garlic clove, crushed
¼ teaspoon Tabasco

Combine all ingredients. Refrigerate until ready to serve. Makes about ½ cup sauce.

Browning For Stew

Meat cubes are browned slowly in lard or drippings for a brown stew. Browning may be omitted if you prefer a light stew. Browned or not browned, the meat should be cooked slowly in liquid below the boiling point until tender.

Canadian-Style Bacon

Canadian-style bacon is a favorite of many women because of its elegant taste and its tender, lean meat. Called back bacon in Canada, it is a cured, smoked boneless strip of pork loin which is easy to cook in many ways — pan-fry, broil or bake.

Mature spiny lobsters resemble northern lobsters but lack their giant claws and stiff fantails.

Flavor For Frosting — Color It Pastel!

Suddenly it's spring — time to enjoy the light brightness of spring days, to buy a flowered hat, to take a fresh approach to homemaking, to try something new. A fluffy frosting in a pretty pastel, for instance, will give your favorite cake the same lift you get from a new spring hat.

The frosting is of the popular fluffy type, but the egg whites are beaten with an electric mixer in a bowl rather than on the stove. The pastel tints come from the preserve jar, each with its own distinctive flavor.

Consider a rich, chocolate cake with fluffy frosting that owes its delicate mint flavor and fresh green color to mint jelly. Or a white cake with frosting of pale pink and the flavor of raspberry jelly. Or yellow cake topped in lavender with a bit of the flavor that makes grape jelly an American favorite. You might use grape jam for the filling for this one.

There are a multitude of flavors to choose from: mint, currant, grape, or raspberry jelly; preserves such as strawberry, peach, apricot, pineapple, blackberry, and blueberry; and orange marmalade.

For a spring party, try cupcakes frosted in a variety of flavors to form a rainbow of color on your serving tray.

Pastel Frosting

1½ cups grape, mint, currant or raspberry jelly or strawberry preserves
½ cup light corn syrup
2 egg whites
⅛ teaspoon salt

Combine jelly or preserves and corn syrup in saucepan. Cook slowly until jelly dissolves and mixture reaches the thread stage (230° to 234° F.). Combine egg whites and salt; beat until whites hold soft peaks. Add hot syrup slowly beating constantly during addition. Continue beating until frosting is stiff enough to hold firm points. Yield: Will frost between layers, top and sides of 8-inch layer cake. Amount of jelly and preserves may be increased to taste to intensify color and flavor.

Butterscotch Oatmeal Drops

1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
¾ cup soft butter
2 eggs
2 cups sifted flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon baking soda
1 6-ounce package (1 cup) butterscotch morsels
1 cup quick-cooking rolled oats
½ cup chopped nuts

Cream together sugar and butter. Beat in eggs, one at a time. Sift in flour, salt and baking soda; mix well. Stir in butterscotch morsels, rolled oats and nuts. Drop by well-rounded teaspoonfuls, 2 inches apart, on greased cookie sheets. Bake in a moderate oven, (350°F.) 12 minutes.

YIELD: Approximately 1½ dozen.

Don't Feed This Bear

Aglow with the VIP treatment accorded its members in Moscow, a British trade delegation reports tempting goodies available on tempting terms. The Russians offered to sell them machine tools and expressed interest in buying from the British some chemicals and factories.

There also was some mention of Russian oil, but the British didn't acquire their reputation as shrewd international businessmen talking about things like that.

Buying goods from the Russians, who presumably have the same burial plans for the British as they have for the U. S., is nothing new for Britain. Last year the British bought $238 million in Soviet goods and sold the Russians $194 million worth of their own.

Lord Ebbisham, vice president of the London Chamber of Commerce and leader of the latest trade mission, says he sees no reason why this Soviet-British trade shouldn't be doubled in the next five years.

From this side of the Atlantic, where so much effort is required to checkmate the Soviet's ceaseless encroachment on freedom, it is easy to see why the trade between Lion and Bear shouldn't be doubled in the next five years.

The machine tools Russia offers Britain would replace those the U. S. now sells Britain, earning needed dollars, incidentally, to help protect Britain and all of Western Europe from Soviet communization. There is an old axiom that a man shouldn't lend chips to his rivals in a poker game, and presumably the British know about it. Yet in the matter of this Russian machine-tool deal, one member of the mission explains, "We should seize the opportunity. We need the business."

And that, it is safe to prophesy, is one thing they can be sure the Russians intend to give them, sooner or later.

Farmers Show Spunk

Maybe Stanley Yankus can now come home.

Yankus, you may remember, was the chicken farmer who couldn't be convinced that he was violating either the interstate commerce clause of the U.S. Constitution or the regulations of the Department of Agriculture when he raised some excess wheat on his own acres to feed to his hens. The government naturally had the last say in the matter, and Yankus, outraged by the infringement of what he insisted was a basic liberty, departed from America in a burst of eloquence to take up citizenship in Australia.

When he was last heard from, Yankus was enjoying life under a banana tree. As a lover of freedom this column continues to wish him well, but the recent farm vote on the wheat referendum may indicate that Stanley Yankus lost his faith in Americans too soon.

The farm vote, indeed, is the first indication in many years that Americans can be persuaded that a long-term commitment to freedom is worth more to them than the lure of immediate economic gains. When the Nazis tried to crowd Britain to the wall by offering a humiliating deal, Winston Churchill growled, "What kind of people do they think we are?" It was just this sort of response that the wheat farmers showed when they rejected, by a handsome majority vote, the offer of high support prices for a complete government control of production and sales.

Make no mistake about it, the Department of Agriculture crowded on every last bit of pressure to coerce or bribe the farmer into voting its way. By radio and TV Secretary Orville Freeman's boys dinned it into the wheat farmer's ears that the choice was between government price props of $2 a bushel and a total collapse of the wheat market. The threat, delivered from the White House, was that if the farmer refused to accept Orville Freeman's strait jacket control plan, there would be no interim legislation to help the farmer to live through a bad period as the agricultural community moves by degrees to the idea that the free market in wheat is the best for all concerned.

In voting as they did, the farmers placed their short-run fate in the hands of Congress. The immediate effect of uncontrolled wheat plantings and sales might well be a flooding of the market and a drastic drop in prices. Whether the farm patient, who has been poulticed by subsidies and strapped up by price supports for thirty years, can accept the piercing air of freedom all at once without succumbing to his fears is a question. The attitude of the Administration is that a little suffering will bring the farmer around to voting for bureaucratic surveillance and serfdom next year. It is a cynical attitude, and a Congress which still has a rural orientation can hardly take the threat of a veto of interim wheat legislation lying down.

Well, what should be done to get the farmers in shape to live in the world of freedom? The most promising idea is to make interim support available to wheat farmers who fail to get more than a certain fixed minimum of income per year. This should be done, not on a continuing basis, but for an agreed-upon period, with the supports diminishing each year in accordance with a stated scale. The idea would be to give farmers who are close to the subsistence line a little time to find different ways of farming, or to get off the land entirely.

Senator Talmadge of Georgia is on the record with a plan for supporting cotton growers only to the point of need—and there is no reason why the Talmadge idea can't be applied to wheat. But evidently Congress will have to make its agricultural policy decisions this year without any cooperation from the White House.

The farmers who reacted against Secretary of Agriculture Freeman's pressuring showed a surprising amount of spunk. The vote rejecting strict wheat controls came at a gloomy time. Cuba is lost to freedom, the Italian elections point to the continuing growth of European Leftism, and everyone seems to take it for granted that a socialist Harold Wilson will be the next Prime Minister of Britain. In this lugubrious darkness the American wheat farmers have lit a candle. Let us hope that it will not be snuffed out.

Gen. Sarnoff Throws Blockbuster At Communications Satellite Corp.

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Gen. David Sarnoff, chairman of the RCA and one of the most experienced communications experts in the USA, has thrown a blockbuster into the Communications Satellite Corporation. He has written a letter to Leo Welch, chairman of the corporation, raising grave doubts as to whether the satellite is worth developing under the present setup.

Coming from a man who has spent 57 years in communications and who made radio and television a way of life in the U. S., the Sarnoff letter has had more effect than a Senate filibuster. If it had been written at the time Senators Kefauver, Gore, Gruening, Burdick et al were fighting against the Satellite Corporation Bill, it would not have passed.

The Sarnoff letter so far is confidential. However, this column can reveal that he makes the following points:

1.—Transistorized cables, now being developed by American Tel and Tel will carry double the existing transocean traffic and will handle all TV signals and other traffic for some time to come.

2.—The present telephone and cable companies will not use the satellite because they already have money invested in their own cable facilities; so they will not spend extra money to use the satelltie.

3.—The most practical solution to the satellite dilemma is to organize one large private company, under government regulation, to operate all the present cables, all radio circuits, and all future satellite communications.

Doubts About Future

The Sarnoff letter comes at a time when other directors of the Satellite Corporation, a private company set up by the Kennedy Administration, have had growing doubts about their over-glamorized establishment.

It also comes at a time when thousands of letters have been received from private investors wanting to know when they can invest in the new company. If the Sarnoff letter and the private view of several directors are any criterion, it will be a long time before the corporation will merit a public stock issue.

The Sarnoff letter was written in reply to an inquiry by Satellite Chairman Welch, asking for Sarnoff's views. In his unpublished letter, Gen. Sarnoff quoted statements by Fred Kappel, head of AT&T, also James E. Dingman, vice president of AT&T, that new transistorized cables would provide 720 telephone circuits alone, and that "one transistorized cable laid across the North Atlantic could connect areas possessing 90 per cent of the world's present telephones."

"One new transistorized cable will have a capacity almost double that of all existing transoceanic cables," Gen. Sarnoff wrote, "and Mr. Dingman has expressed the rope that it will permit a lower cost per channel than the present facilities."

Quoting the Rand report that present and planned conventional cable and radio will be adequate to handle international traffic between now and 1965, Sarnoff continued:

"I believe the Satellite Corporation is now confronted more seriously by the question of when its operations can reasonably be expected to become profitable.

"On the basis of the present state of development in satellite communications," Gen. Sarnoff continued, "five to ten years may pass before any commercial satellite communications system will be able to offer reliable and continuous service on a global scale."

British Competition

Gen. Sarnoff then pointed out that "in nearly all other countries, government monopolies own and operate their communications systems. . .presumably the principal foreign countries will utilize their cable facilities to maximum capacity before diverting any substantial amount of traffic to the American Satellite Corporation and paying for the use of its facilities."

Summarizing his solution to the difficult problem, Sarnoff said in his unpublished letter:

"We should not consider an amendment to the present law which would enable the Satellite Corporation to acquire, through purchase, the International Telephone and Telegraph facilities and operations, both present and planned, of all American carriers.

The enlarged Satellite Corporation should continue as private enterprise," Sarnoff argued. "The new organization should operate as a public utility under appropriate government regulation."

Gen. Sarnoff pointed out that this big communications combine would have the advantage of starting on "an immediate and solid revenue base" since the existing U. S. communications companies did a $160,000,000 international business in 1962 and would be doing $350,000,000 by 1970. Furthermore this combine could deal with equal strength with foreign governments.

"The British General Post Office and its Commonwealth partners already operate one of the world's most extensive international communications systems. . . in the absence of a unified U. S. enterprise, the British might well regain the dominant position they occupied in international communications prior to the first World War."

Even Judges Don't Know 'Law Of The Land'

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — When there's a confused judiciary, there's bound to be a confused public. And how can anyone tell what "the law of the land" really is today when the judges themselves contradict each other in a matter of a few hours?

Thus, the first editions of two New York City newspapers — which reach many subscribers or newsstand buyers in Washington —said in their headlines Thursday morning:

"U. S. Judge Rejects Appeal to Reinstate Birmingham Pupils"—New York "Times."

"Court Won't Bar Pupil Ousters" — New York "Herald Tribune."

Yet this wasn't the fact very long. A few hours later, these same newspapers were telling their readers in later editions in New York City that a U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals judge had, on the same day, overturned the earlier ruling.

The case in question arose when the Board of Education of the City of Birmingham ordered the suspension of the 1,081 Negro students in the public schools who had been arrested on May 7, during street demonstrations, on the charge of parading without a permit. The city's policy has been to take such action against any student who is arrested for any reason until the charges are disposed of in the courts.

U. S. District Judge Clarence W. Allgood, who was appointed by President Kennedy, issued a ruling in which he said:

"This court feels that the Board of Education of the City of Birmingham in its disciplinary problems deserves no interference from this court so long as it stays in reasonable bounds."

Judge Allgood said he had assured that suspended pupils would be given "a speedy, fair and comprehensive hearing," and he added:

"This court was shocked to see hundreds of school children ranging in age from 6 to 16 running loose and wild without direction over the streets of Birmingham and in the business establishments.

"It is due to the patience and good judgment of the people of Birmingham and the police officials particularly that no one was seriously injured on May 7, 1963, when the demonstrators were allowed by the Police Department and city officials of Birmingham to parade within a certain designated area, and the hundreds of school children in the parade refused to stay within the boundaries of the parade area, broke through the police and for some 45 minutes ran wild over the City of Birmingham."

Judge Allgood stated further that he had been advised by the school authorities "that the suspension or expulsion of no child will be upheld by the School Board, after a hearing, due to prejudice, anger or retailiation." He continued:

"The court feels that this is borne out by the fact the School Board, in adopting its policy, at the same time stipulated that all students, whether expelled or suspended, would be allowed to make up in summer school the work that they had lost."

A few hours later on Wednesday evening, Judge Elbert P. Tuttle, of the Fifth U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, issued a ruling at Atlanta, Georgia, ordering the Birmingham school superintendent to tell the suspended pupils they could return to their classes Thursday morning even if the school superintendent had to advise them over the radio. Judge Tuttle said his order does not affect the right of school officials to discipline any students for "acts of actual violence or actual breaches of the peace other than parading without a permit." He declared that the students were 'llegally arrested for exercising this constitutional right."

"What harm would it do," asked Judge Tuttle of the superintendent of schools' attorney, Reid Barnes, "to put these children back in school while their appeal is pending?"

"According to the superintendent of schools," replied Mr. Barnes, "it would cause a breakdown of discipline and morale."

So now the federal judiciary, in effect, takes charge of a city's educational system and decides how children shall be disciplined. Yet there isn't a word in the Constitution which gives the federal government any such power over the educational system in any state.

But the confusion isn't confined to the South. Just across the Potomac from Washington, another federal judge, Oren R. Lewis, handed down a decision on Wednesday which, for the first time, emphasizes "equal rights for whites." he ordered the Commissioners of the District of Columbia to give white prisoners at the Lorton Reformatory a chance to decide whether they want to sleep in an all-white dormitory or in one for both whites and Negroes. The policy for the institution had been that only the Negro prisoners could decide for themselves whether they wanted to live in an all-Negro dormitory or an integrated one. No such right to make a choice had been granted by jail officials to the whites.

Yet "the law of the land" is supposed to be quite clear nowadays so the citizens will always understand and obey what the courts tell them lest federal troops be mobilized "to enforce a court order." But what shall parents throughout the country think when they are refused a choice between integrated and segregated schools for their children? Are there to be "equal choices" only in the federal government's jails?

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

NO PERLE MESTA — Perle Mesta, the wealthy Washington party-giver, used to be the darling of the Truman administration, but she's failed to score with the successor Democratic administration of President John F. Kennedy.

Perle was Truman's ambassadress to Luxembourg and presumably on friendly terms with ruling circles in that little country. When the Grand Duchess Charlotte, Luxembourg's ruling monarch, visited Washington recently, it was incumbent on the Kennedy's to officiate at a formal dinner at the White House.

Normally, Mrs. Mesta would be high on the list of those invited, but the White House was determined not to do so. In order to accomplish this, it had to omit from the list of invited guests all former ambassadors to that country.

Mrs. Mesta, politically active, opposed Kennedy before he won the Democratic presidential nomination. And there's a strong rumor that Mrs. Kennedy has been irritated over Perle's attempts to ingratiate herself with the First Family ever since.

Mrs. Mesta was invited to a luncheon given in Charlotte's honor, but she took the hint and didn't attend.

Medieval Custom

By John Crosby

In Rome one should never work, says the hall porter regretfully. Of course, we all have to, but it is a pity. Especially in this weather, which is magnificent.

In Rome, as I write this, the Pope is ill. (He just cancelled his weekly audience, giving rise to all sorts of rumors.) The Italians are without a government. The Italian movie industry — Hollywood-on-the-Tiber they called it not long ago — is going bust, parts of it anyway. A beautiful German girl with 14 men's names in her little black book has been knifed to death and the penny press is going wild.

Still, the real news is the weather. This is truly the Eternal City, if only because it celebrates that eternal custom called spring which is going out of style everywhere else. London and Paris are still shivering. The last two years I was in New York the seasons jumped from winter to summer, eliminating spring altogether. I thought maybe spring had become obsolete like dining-rooms in modern houses. But here they still celebrate that medieval custom known as spring.

You wander through the streets in a shower of sunshine admiring the magnificently proportioned buildings. Gold? Ochre? Mustard? What is the color of Rome? The windows are miracles of proportion and that too is obsolete. We've repealed spring and the architects have repealed the laws of proportion.

I waked to the sound of the bells and wandered out into the Piazza di Montecitorio. Big column there with IMP. CAESAR AUGUSTUS printed on the base. Some local big shot, I guess. Mayor or something. Nearby are a couple of the caribinieri in the tricorne hats. Look like refugees from the Metropolitan Opera.

I drift into the Piazza Navona with its superb Renaissance houses fronting on the square with its three magnificent fountains. There I sit on a bench and watch a boy dip his handkerchief into the Bernini Fountain, that cascade of baroque sculpture and gushing water at the center of the piaza, and lave his girl's brow. In Rome, you are not supposed to do all that public necking which goes on in Paris. The next best thing for a lover to do is to lave his girl's brow.

It's pleasant there in the piazza, watching the lovers and listening to the splash of the fountains. I pull out a copy of the European edition of the New York Herald Tribune and fall to reading a plan proposed by the Architectural League and the Park Asociation of New York. The two groups proposed, as a start, to turn three macadamed midtown parking lots into sitting and eating parks with water cascades at each end, the whole covered with flowers and ivy, as refreshment to the human spirit.

But, it says here, Traffic Commissioner Henry Barnes has scoffed at the whole notion, citing prohibitive land cost in the heart of the city and the need of the land to get more cars off the street.

Well, of course, Commissioner Barnes is right. I look around the Piazza Navona. My God, how they waste space, these Italians. The piazza is the size of a football field. And what's in it? Light, air, people. Ridiculous. You could probably get 400 cars in there with a little crowding. Maybe 600.

Have to take the fountains out, of course. That Bernini Fountain in the middle. Hell of a waste of space. Could get 20 Cadillacs parked on that site alone. Land cost too prohibitive for fountains. Everyone knows that. Except Italians. I look around. Kids playing soccer, wasting hell of a lot of space. They ought to be off in an alley, practicing their juvenile delinquency, like all the other kids. Imagine taking perfectly good parking space and giving it over to children! Italians are nuts.

And, if you have to bathe your girl friend's brow, what are bathrooms for?

Gripes And Lessons From Bomb Shelter Front

By Theodore R. Van Dellen

Life in a bomb shelter is not pleasant, even for short periods. In one survey, lack of water for washing was the chief complaint, followed by the monotony of eating the same food, overcrowding, dirt, and the behavior of others. These drawbacks need not exist but they were the major sources of psychologic discomfort among a group of 100 volunteer navy personnel who spent two weeks during the summer and again in the winter in a navy shelter at Bethesda, Md.

According to John E. Rasmussen of the institute, the men were handpicked and the shelter routine was followed to the letter. No limit was placed on the amount of water for drinking but none was available for washing or shaving.

Two meals were served daily. The first consisted of survival ration crackers, served with a variety of jellies. The same crackers were served for the second meal in hot soup or topped with peanut butter. Several kinds of soup were available to provide variety. Instant coffee and water were provided for both meals.

The winter group also found the shortage of water for bathing the main cause of discomfort. Complaints about the food were lengthy and the survival crackers were the prime target of criticism. The summer group had the same gripe about water for washing but the heat and humidity were next on the list of objections. Dirt was third and food was fourth. The sailors lost appetite because of the heat.

Various lessons can be learned from this experiment. The project showed that the psychologic or emotional needs are as important as the nutritional value, storage, and selection of food. These men were young and healthy. What happens when the sexes are mixed and some of the shelter inhabitants are elderly, injured, or sick? It is obvious that building a shelter — no matter how expensive — is only half the story.

FAILING HEART

J. B. writes: I've been told heart failure does not show up on an electrocardiogram or the stethoscope. How, then, does a doctor make this diagnosis?

REPLY

The patient tells of being short of breath, having to sleep with two or more pillows, swelling of the ankles, and indigestion. In addition, examination shows enlargement of the heart and liver, and congestion is noted at the base of the lungs.

A LAUGHING DRINKER

S. F. writes: A 52 year old man drinks a lot of beer and some whisky. He is deaf and doesn't talk much but he laughs aloud to himself on the job as a dishwasher. What do you think is the matter with him?

REPLY

Being deaf, he may not realize he is making these sounds. But a person need not be hard of hearing to do this, especially after drinking.

EXCESSIVE RED CELLS

L. J. P. writes: Last year, after recovering from a strep throat and walking pneumonia, I developed polycythemia. Could either of these infections have caused the bone marrow to start manufacturing too much blood?

REPLY

No. In most cases, the cause of polycythemia rubra vera cannot be determined.

THE ITCH MITE

L. M. writes: Could a clean person get scabies?

REPLY

Yes, when the dirty associate with the clean. Send stamped, self - addressed envelope for leaflet on scabies, or the seven year itch.

GLASS SLIVERS

A. C. writes: I have several pieces of glass imbedded in my left hand. It feels as though they are touching the bone. Do you think I should have them removed by operation?

REPLY

Yes, but if you wait until this answer appears I'm sure several will have festered.

TOMORROW: Fetal loss.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of diseases will be answered Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

A town in South Dakota was in the process of electing a new mayor and board of advisors, and Mrs. Hubbard thought it would be educational to take her seven-year-old daughter with her to the polling booth. On the way home the daughter asked, "Mom, do you always vote for the men you love most?" "Whatever put an idea like that in your mind?" wondered Mrs. Hubbard. "Well," said the daughter, "I saw you put kisses next to their names."

Colonel James Cokesbury Albright, the pride of Dallas, says that when it comes to gallantry, Texans cannot be beat. He cites as an example a rough old gaffer from the oil fields who was just preparing to dig into a succulent piece of roast pig at a barbecue when someone careened into him from behind and knocked his plate to the ground. In a rage he bollowed, "You hawg! You want all the space there is?" and then he perceived the offender was the dignified wife of his host. Without a second thought he amended his statement. "Lady hawg, that is, ma'am."

Woman To Woman

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nearly 50 thousand girls under age 17 became mothers — out of wedlock — last year.

Nearly 50 thousand boys under age 17 became fathers — out of wedlock — during the same year. Some of the 50 thousand males involved were a bit older than 17.

The young fathers and mothers have problems stemming from emotional wreckage. The mothers, sociologists tell us, suffer more than the fathers, who often manage to escape their responsibility.

But together, their problems are slight, compared to the problems some 50 thousand children, born out of wedlock, will have to shoulder throughout life.

The tragedy of teenage, out-of-wedlock motherhood and fatherhood, a problem that continues to grow, is one that Dorothy Foster attacks in the current journal of the American Home Economics Association.

The state supervisor of home economics education in Ohio asks: "What would I tell my sons and daughters?"

She believes that parents have the prime responsibility for sex education. She reported:

"As I observe, read, and hear about the alarming number of pregnancies that are occurring among high school students I ask myself — what would I tell my sons and daughters.

"Since I am a home economist with an intense interest in homes and families, I find myself caring greatly about the sons and daughters of other people."

Sex education seems to be the place where failure has left its mark — via too little and too late.

The home economist says it's vital to acknowledge that sex is an important factor in every human life from the moment of birth

"This is dramatically evident," she said, "as we consider the fact that the very first words spoken about a new born child are to state its sex: It's a boy or it's a girl.

"How utterly inconsistent that some people regard sex as something to be clothed with a veil of secrecy!"

To help children acquire a healthy attitude toward sex, the home economist would:

—Be sure that the children have taken vital initial steps in discovering their roles in the world as males or as females before they entered the FIRST grade.

—Some of the message would be in words. But other parts would be wordless. A child would get this segment of the message from the way its father and mother got along in the home. Each would see, without verbalization, that father and mother loved them and each other.

—Give the children a chance to ask questions. The parent, ready for the questions ought to be prepared to be a good listener. And then, able to answer the questions honestly and simply.

"As they begin dating," the home economist said, "I would want my teenage sons and daughters to realize that every person is a sexual being as one part of his intricate physical, mental, emotional and spiritual makeup. I would want them to realize something of the tremendous power of the sex drives housed in their bodies.

"I would like to help them know that his power can work for or against them."

Arlene's Condition Called Satisfactory

NEW YORK (AP) — Television entertainer Arlene Francis' condition was reported satisfactory Monday, after a Long Island auto crash left her with a broken collarbone.

Miss Francis, 55, lost control of her car Sunday on Northern State Parkway at Lake Success and skidded on wet pavement over a divider and head on into another car. One woman was killed in the second car, and four persons injured.

Miss Francis also suffered a minor concussion and scalp cuts and bruises. Taken unconscious to an East Meadow, N.Y., hospital, she later was transferred to Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center in Manhattan.

Meter Receipts Down

Parking meter receipts the week of May 19 amounted to $768.25 compared to $938.50 the week of May 12, a decrease of $170.25, Inspector Harry Whisner reported to the Mayor and Council yesterday.

A brief examination of the above diagram will surely convince the reader that South must go down to defeat in his four spade contract. That South actually made the hand is, in our view, not altogether a slur on the defense which was to be sure somewhat reprehensible but, this does not detract from the credit due to South for his ingenuity.

South opened the bidding with one spade and West overcalled two hearts. After North's pass, East was tempted to enter the auction but he was not sure in which direction he could compete profitably and his singleton heart acted as an effective deterrent, so he passed. South rebid his spades and, when North offered a delayed raise, he carried on to game.

West led the king of hearts and, when the dummy was put down, it appeared that everything hinged on the club finesse since declarer was off two heart tricks and one diamond on the face of things. When East followed to the opening lead, South knew that he had a singleton heart, for surely West must have a five card suit to justify an overcall at the two level.

Declarer decided that he might obtain a little extra working room if he could sever the line of communications between his opponents. After winning the first trick with the ace of hearts, he accordingly drew two rounds of trumps ending up in dummy. Now a small diamond was led. East rushed in with the ace and continued the suit, as South ruffed.

A small club was led and the queen was played from the dummy. East was in with the king, but this time he had no safe means of exit. He finally chose to get out with a club and North's ten won the trick. The ace of clubs was cashed on which both South and West discarded hearts. Another club was led from dummy and when East covered he was permitted to hold the trick as South threw another heart. East found himself end-played for a second time. Whether he returned a club or a diamond, declarer could discard his last heart while he ruffed in dummy. The defenders took in all, two club tricks and one diamond.

East could and indeed should have defeated the contract by ducking the diamond lead from dummy, for this would give West a chance to cash out his two heart tricks. Declarer however had earned his triumph by giving his opponent an opportunity to make the wrong play.

One of the closest photo finishes in tournament bridge history climaxed the finals of the National Open Pairs held recently in St. Louis. Going into the last round, Norman Kay, Merchantville, N. J., and Sidney Silodor, Philadelphia, were apparently tied for the lead with Dan Rotman and Ivar Stakgold, Chicago. Both pairs produced identical scores in the final session, but a careful recalculation of their carry-over totals going in revealed that Silodor and Kay were actually a minute fraction ahead, and they were declared the winners.

One of the most colorful hands from this event came up during one of the qualifying rounds and is presented here. The pair seated North and South fulfilled a doubled contract of six hearts with a distinct minority of the total high card values.

East opened the bidding with one diamond and South, whose assets were primarily distributional in nature, decided to muddy up the waters a bit for his opponents by making a preemptive jump to three hearts. West came in freely with four clubs. North bided his time by bidding four hearts and East raised his partner to five clubs.

South persisted to five hearts and West doubled. East, however, was not certain whose hand it actually was, and he chose to take out a little insurance by bidding six clubs. North was in position to take a profit by doubling six clubs, but with all of the distribution that appeared to be lurking on the deal some of his high cards might be ruffed away. In the hope that his partner was short in spades, North went on to six hearts, and East's double closed the auction.

West tried to cash the ace of clubs but declarer ruffed in dummy. The ace and king of diamonds were played, as South discarded a spade, and he proceeded to ruff two more clubs in dummy, draw the trump, and give up one club at the end.

In the post-mortem discussion it was suggested that West should have led the king of spades, but this would actually have availed nothing, for declarer could as an alternate line of play set up North's spade suit for the necessary number of discards.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I disagree with your reply to Deserted Mother. She was a nervous wreck because her about-to-be-married daughter wanted to walk down the aisle alone — as a symbolic slap in the face to her absent father who had skipped 17 years earlier.

You said there was no need to make a spectacle of herself and that it would only provide more grist for the gossip mill. You also added, "Why humiliate your mother in an attempt to punish your father — who probably couldn't care less?"

Well, I'm a mother who was faced with precisely the same problem and you are wrong wrong wrong. I walked my daughter down the aisle myself. I then took my place in the front pew. When the minister asked, "Who giveth this woman?" I stood, faced the guests proudly and replied, "I do!"

My three brothers would have been glad to perform the honors but why should they have been asked? I raised the girl myself and she was Mine to give away. It was, I might add, the happiest moment of my entire life. —NO PHONY

DEAR NO PHONY: The about to be bride described in the first letter was a bitter young girl whose hostility would have spoiled the wedding and hurt her mother.

Your letter reflects an even more savage bitterness and hostility. What you refer to as the happiest moment of your entire life was a moment of revenge.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I belong to a club with 17 other secretaries and the problem about which I am writing is a surprisingly common one. The boss' wife.

She waltzes into the office almost every day, ignores closed doors, breaks in on private conferences, sits herself down and acts as if she is Chairman of the Board. This is terribly annoying because I'm supposed to take down everything said at these conferences and when she butts in I'm never sure if I should record her remarks.

Some days she just struts around the office, reads over our shoulders, shuffles through papers on our desks and noses through the file cabinets.

What baffles me is that this woman should know better because she was once a secretary—in fact, she had my job, which is how she got the boss to divorce his wife and marry her.

Why doesn't she have brains enough to stay home?

—ANNOYED

DEAR ANNOYED: She sounds like a brass-plated beaut but maybe she's afraid history will repeat itself and she's down there to make certain it doesn't.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We are delighted with our new daughter-in-law. She and our son graduated from college last fall and they live about 200 miles from here.

They both work and have a lovely apartment with all new furniture. My husband and I are very eager to go visit them and see their little place which they have described in detail. Of course we plan to stay in a hotel since they have only one bedroom, so that is not the question.

What we want to know is this: Should we wait for them to invite us, or should we write and tell them we are coming? My husband says since we will stay in a hotel we need not wait to be invited.

Our relationship with the new daughter-in-law is so good I would hate to do anything that might hurt it. My instincts tell me to wait until a specific invitation is issued. What do you say?

—MRS. CAREFUL

DEAR MRS.: Your instincts are right. Wait for an invitation. You'll be glad you did.

Are your parents too strict? You can benefit from the experiences of thousands of teenagers if you write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Standing Tall

If you're tall — stand tall. If you do, you won't destroy that statuesque charm that is your birthright, and you won't diminish your height. On the other hand, if you're petite, you can actually stretch your height one inch — by standing tall.

Stretching faithfully each day can almost make you feel slimmer from the day you begin it. Not only will you find that it tautens the midriff, but the waist and abdomen as well. It also "melts" away or helps prevent those high pockets of fat at back, sides, and flanks.

Here's how you start this simple exercise. Stand straight with feet about 15 inches apart. Clasp your hands overhead as high as you can reach and make an arch. Now, here comes the important part of the stretch. Use the middle muscles only — let them do the work of pulling the waistline up and away from the hips and ribs up and away from the waist. Note how you seem slimmer, taller and even flat in the abdomen.

Hold these mid-section muscles and bend sideways at the waist. Sway the lifted arms as far as possible to the right. Keep the head in normal position rather than bent backward or forward and keep the hands clasped. Breathe out as you bend. Breathe in when you swing back to the starting position. Continue to hold your upward stretch position, and repeat to the left side.

In the beginning, you may do well to do this exercise two or three times. But, as soon as your body becomes more supple, you will enjoy performing ten or twenty bends.

THE SCALE NEVER LIES — DARN IT! But what it says can be more pleasant if you start now on the idealizing program detailed in the handy pamphlet, "How Much Should You Weigh?" to start your "idealizing" program. Send 10c and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Mr. Powers in care of this newspaper. Your copy will arrive in two weeks.

Employes At Park Pool Named By City Officials

Seasonal workers for the Constitution Park pool which will open officially Thursday, Memorial Day, were named by the Mayor and Council yesterday on recommendation of the Recreation Department.

Named pool manager is Charles Smith Jr., 507 Warren Street, at $110 bi-weekly.

Others named are John Hamilton Jr., head lifeguard, $75 bi-weekly; Judith Giles, Gayle Proudfoot and Nancy Ann Stitcher, cashier-checkers, $45 bi-weekly; Judith Shank, Sue Wagner, Suzanne Kilroy, Jill Ullery and Nancy Baker, extra cashier-checkers, $45 bi-weekly; Keith Thomas, Robert Lynch, Donnie Isner, Henry Brown, Gary Valentine, John Malone and David Abbott, extra lifeguards at $60 bi-weekly.

Council also named Ronald M. Kyhos, Windsor Road, as temporary blacktop inspector for the Engineering Department at $1.50 an hour.

In other action, Police and Fire Commissioner William V. Keegan was authorized to advertise for bids for 57 winter uniforms for the Police Department; Mayor Earl D. Chaney to ask bids for a concession-type building for the Municipal Ballfield; Water Commissioner G. Ray Light for bids for rehabilitation of the face of the Lake Gordon dam and for a passenger vehicle for the Water Department. In the case of the dam face work, City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum pointed out the work had been requested by Pennsylvania state officials and it has nothing to do with the planned lowlift pump project at the dam.

The bid of Hout Construction Company in the amount of $6,532 for extending the Utah Avenue storm sewer to first Street was accepted; as was the $2,610.58 bid of Gratton Ford for a station wagon for the Police Department.

Two bids were received on a proposal for labor and materials involved in the painting of Central Fire Station and the Allegany County League for Crippled Children property. But one, Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, quoted only paint prices, city officials said. The other from Whitman and Cessna quoted a bid of $1,750. Both were referred to City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum and Street Commissioner Lucile Roeder.

A proclamation was approved naming June as "Dairy Month."

Compliment Given

Police and Fire Commissioner William V. Keegan at the meeting of the Mayor and Council yesterday, complimented Street Commissioner Lucile Roeder for the program arranged for the opening of Constitution Park, Thursday, Memorial Day.

Federal Aid Being Sought For Drainage Project Here

The Mayor and Council yesterday by resolution formally requested federal assistance under the Accelerated Public Works Program for encasing a natural drainage ravine between Wempe Drive and South Street.

The resolution points out that the project would involve use of reinforced concrete pipe. An accompanying resolution also cites the public works program of the city and notes that matching money would be available for the project.

In another move aimed at becoming eligible for Federal assistance, council, in what City Attorney Hugh A. McMullen said was a formality, agree to join Memorial Hospital in jointly signing any applications in connection with the hospital's proposed improvement program.

The city, under the agreement, will co-sponsor all applications and authorized John A. Moberly, hospital superintendent, to sign for the city when applications are made by the hospital's Board of Governors.

The site of the hospital is owned by the city, McMullen said, and the federal government had asked why the city is not participating in the applications.

In a pre-council sessions, it was pointed out the city could convey the property to the hospital, lease it to the hospital or join in the applications.

Council agreed it would be better to become a joint member in any application for public works funds, or become a co-sponsor.

Formal Vote Report Given City Council

The Mayor and Council officially made last Tuesday's vote opposing fluoridation a part of the city charter yesterday after receiving a certification report from the Allegany County Board of Election Supervisors.

The report showed 5,415 voted and 3,827 opposed fluoridation and 1,503 were in favor of it.

The action was a mere formality in view of the referendum results.

But Finance Commissioner Frederick J. Hill had read into the record an editorial appearing in the Baltimore Sun which pointed out that Cumberland will serve as a "control" in determining the effect of fluoride on dental cavities since 90 per cent of the people of Maryland drink fluoridated water.

The request brought from Water Commissioner G. Ray Light, who opposed fluoride and wanted the referendum, the comment "Let the people of Maryland drink what kind of water they want and the people of Cumberland drink the kind of water they want."

Handy Shopping Guide to Series E U.S. SAVINGS BONDS

Makes an ideal gift for graduations, birthdays, communions, bar mitzvahs or any occasion when you want to be especially nice to someone. Including yourself. Sells for $18.75

This is an increasingly popular size with millions of American families. If you'd started buying one every month ten years ago, you'd now have $5,230. On sale at all times for $37.50

In 7¾ years you can turn this Bond in for a crisp hundred dollar bill. You'll be getting 3¼% interest and your government's thanks. You can buy it for only $75.00

This one is tailor-made for the investment of bonuses, tax refunds and other windfalls. In 7¾ years it grows into a tidy $200 nest egg, yet costs only $150.00

Grandfathers can give one of these Bonds to eight grandchildren (or eight of them to one grandchild) in any one year without having to pay the gift tax, because the outlay per Bond is only $375.00

Very few people can buy one of these out of every paycheck. But lots of businesses buy them as a good safe investment for company surplus funds. And widows who suddenly find themselves with a large insurance check can do no better than to put part of that money into one of these king-size Bonds.

$750.00

Issued for larger investors, whether individuals or institutions (yes, corporations, partnerships, credit unions, pension funds and any other group except commercial banks may own Savings Bonds — and many do).

$7,500.00

No matter what their denomination, all U.S. Savings Bonds have these things in common: They're one of the safest and most widely held investments in the world—owned by tens of millions of American families.

They're replaceable in case of loss by fire, theft or plain carelessness

They return $4 for every $3 invested, at maturity.

They're cashable at any time without red tape (and you can defer the tax on the interest until the Bond is cashed).

They do the double job of helping to make your individual future, as well as your country's future, secure.

Buy the ones that fit your budget — at your bank, or through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work.

Cleveland police identified the suspects as Raymond Panger, 26, Charles White, 35, and William Hosey, 45, all of the Cleveland area. They were apprehended early Monday on a tip from an unidentified source.

The men will be charged with breaking and entering upon their return to the Mountain State.

W. Va. Legion Convention To Be Moved

WELCH, W. Va. (UPI) —West Virginia American Legion Commander Chester A. Matney made it official Monday—the state Legion convention is being moved from Bluefield to Huntington because of racial discrimination at Bluefield.

Matney said the convention committee formally accepted an invitation from Huntington Post 16 to hold the convention there Aug. 1-4.

Two Bluefield posts which had been scheduled to sponsor the big meeting withdrew after the headquarters hotel made it plain that it would not change its policy of not accepting Negro patrons.

Matney said the Prichard and Frederick hotels, two of Huntington's largest, will be the convention's official hotels. Delegates will make their own reservations at the hotel or motel of their choice, he said.

The Legion's business sessions and the annual Commanders Banquet Aug. 3, a Saturday, will be held at the Prichard, Matney said.

The state commander also said the convention parade and color guard contest are being called off because of a lack of time resulting from the change in convention sites.

Ninety-two per cent of commercial timberlands owned by forest industries is used for hunting.

Changes Noted In Frostburg Traffic Control

Main Street Lanes Marked

FROSTBURG — Police Commissioner George Kennedy and Police Chief Don Griffith announce that in addition to painting crosswalks and traffic lanes along Main Street this year, lines have been painted at each meter designating that motorists should park front bumper to rear bumper or vice-versa. If parked correctly, any motorist should be able to pull out of a parking position, or any driver should be able to park without any difficulty.

Kennedy and Griffith also wish to caution motorist that "STOP" signs have been placed on Washington Street at the intersection with Sleeman Alley, making it mandatory to stop on Washington Street at this point.

There also will be a "NO LEFT TURN" sign placed at Uhl and Main Streets, prohibiting east bound traffic from turning left on Main Street into Uhl Street. This measure is being used on a temporary basis in order to ascertain if east bound traffic along Main Street moves better under this arrangement.

W. Va. 'Shacks' Are Target For Clean-Up

Unoccupied "shacks" in Mineral, Morgan and Pendleton counties are included in elimination plans of the West Virginia Clean-Up organization.

Clean-up chairman Bonn Brown, of Elkins, said Gov. W. W. Barron "pledged his cooperation in the matter" and that possible new legislation for the 1964 Legislature is being considered. "But we also hope to eliminate many of the shacks in the near future by persuasion," Brown said.

He asserted that the 1960 U. S. Census showed more than 8,000 vacant, dilapidated, rural, nonfarm housing units in West Virginia, many along state roads.

Raleigh County had the most, 630, and Pendleton County the least, 23.

Mineral County's total on the "shack tally" is 69, and Morgan County's is 35.

Chinese May Release Bishop James E. Walsh

Roman Catholic Bishop James E. Walsh, M. M., is a growing source of embarrassment to his Chinese Communist jailers and soon will be released, a former superior general of the Maryknoll Missionary, believes.

This opinion was expressed by Bishop Raymond A. Lane in Rocky River, Ohio, in an article in this week's Baltimore Catholic Review.

Bishop Walsh, a native of Cumberland has been in custody of the Chinese Reds since 1953 when he was arrested on charges of espionage.

His brother, William Walsh, local attorney, visited the 72-year-old bishop three years ago in his prison in Shanghai.

Bishop Lane, a veteran of 20 years in China, said Bishop walsh in refusing to leave China had turned the tables by doing to Bishop Lane what Bishop Lane had previously done to Bishop Walsh.

Bishop Lane explained that he had asked Bishop Walsh to return to America when the Communists took over China. He made the request as general of the order, but since Bishop Walsh's appointment was papal, he was free to refuse — which he did. In 1953, shortly after the Communist conquest, Bishop Walsh was arrested.

But a decade earlier Bishop Lane was in a similar position, and Bishop Walsh was general of the order.

Early in World War II Bishop Lane was in Manchuria. The Japanese wanted him out. They placed him in a concentration camp and told him he would stay there until he agreed to leave the country.

Bishop Walsh urged him to take advantage of the offer and leave the country. But Bishop Lane refused and elected to stay.

Bishop Lane said that his captors were less rigid with him than the Communists are with Bishop Walsh. Nominally, he, like Bishop Walsh, was not permitted to offer Mass while in prison.

But the Japanese guards turned their backs while he had bread and wine smuggled in. He celebrated daily Mass, Bishop Lane said, but Bishop Walsh was not even permitted to have a Rosary his brother brought to him on a visit three years ago.

However, Bishop Lane added, he feels that keeping the 72-year-old Bishop Walsh in prison no longer is of any value to the Communists and he will be released before too long.

Orioles, Cubs Biggest Surprises At One-Third Mark Of Season

Sick Batting Marks Blamed On Strike Zone

Year Is Dominated By Hurlers; Cubs, Tigers Disappoint

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Willie Mays batting .253. Stan Musial only four points higher. Joey Jay with eight defeats in nine decisions.

The Detroit Tigers only one step removed from last place in the American League, Cincinnati's Reds in the National League's second division.

These are some of the major disappointments as the big league season heads into its eighth week.

For each disappointment, there is a pleasant surprise.

Baltimore, which hasn't won a big league pennant since the nostalgic Old Oriole years of 1894-95-96, shapes up as a bonafide challenger to the perpetual Yankee supremacy.

Birds Flying High

The Orioles, bolstered by a flock of winter trades, currently are soaring on an eight-game winning streak and own a 2½ lead over the Yankees.

The biggest team surprises, however, have been sprung by the Kansas City Athletics and Chicago Cubs.

Both are fairly comfortably placed in the first division. That's more than a small miracle considering the Cubs haven't finished in the first division in 17 years and the A's never have enjoyed that feeling since moving to Kansas City nine years ago.

This is a year dominated by the pitchers. Not since the days of the dead ball have there been so many shutouts and low pitched games.

Hitting Is Sickly

The hitting has been sickly. A large number of last year's batting leaders are down among the humpties this season. Pete Runnels, who led the American League in hitting, is battling to reach .250. Tommy Davis, the National League king in 1962, managed to climb over the .300 mark only last weekend.

Baseball people blame the new high strike zone for the low batting averages.

"The new strike zone keeps the batters fidgety," claims Fred Haney, general manager of the Los Angeles Angeles. "It creates a poor mental attitude. The batters are swinging at bad balls."

Mays, who boasts a lifetime batting average of well over .300, blames his slump on the weather.

"I need it warm to hit," he says. "I like hot weather and it's been too cold for me."

Tommy Davis gives the pitchers credit.

"I've never seen such well pitched games as I've seen this year," he declares.

Dave Jolly, 38, Former Braves' Pitcher, Dies

Death Is Caused By Brain Tumor

DURHAM, N. C. (UPI) —Former major league pitcher David Jolly, 38, died here Monday of a brain tumor.

Jolly, from Stony Point, N. C., had been operated on last July and had been re-admitted to the Veterans Administration Hospital here last December.

Jolly, who played with the Milwaukee Braves for five seasons, broke into professional baseball in 1946 with Mooresville in the old North Carolina State League.

Before reaching Milwaukee in 1953, he played in the minor leagues with Tulsa, Columbia, S. C., Syracuse, N.Y., and Kansas City, which was then in the American Association.

In his first year with the Braves, 1953, Jolly had an 0-1 record. The next season he won 11 and lost 6 for his best year in the majors, when he appeared in 47 games and had a 2.43 earned run average.

In 1955 and 1956, still with the Braves, Jolly had 2-3 records. He won 1 and lost 1 in 1957, his last year in the majors.

Jolly is survived by his widow, the former Doris Hunter of Stony Point, and two sons, Michael and Craig.

Dick Ellsworth Has Lowest ERA In Big Leagues

Cubs' Star Is 1.09, Pappas Leads A.L.

By SHELDON SAKOWITZ
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Dick Ellsworth of the Chicago Cubs and Milt Pappas of the Baltimore Orioles boast the lowest earned run averages in the major leagues.

Statistics compiled by The Associated Press showed Monday that Ellsworth tops the National League ERA listings with a 1.09 mark. Pappas is the American League leader with a 1.59 average. Figures are based on pitchers who have worked a minimum of 45 innings.

Ellsworth has allowed eight earned runs in 66 innings while winning five games and losing three. The 23-year-old southpaw posted a 5.08 earned run average last season.

Denver LeMaster of Milwaukee ranks second in the National League with a 1.50 ERA on eight earned runs in 48 innings. Pittsburgh's Don Schwall is third at 1.62. He has yielded nine earned runs in 50 frames.

Sandy Koufax of Los Angeles, the earned run leader in 1962 with a 2.54 average, stands fourth at 1.85. He has given up 14 untainted tallies in 68 innings.

Pappas has allowed nine earned runs in 51 innings. The 24-year-old right-hander has posted a 4-0 won-lost record and two of his four complete games have been shutouts. His ERA in 1962 was 4.04.

Juan Pizarro of the Chicago White Sox is runner-up to Pappas with 2.25. Working 60 innings, he has been charged with 15 earned runs.

Baltimore's Steve Barber is right on Pizzaro's heels at 2.27, followed by Jim Bouton of the New York Yankees in fourth place with 2.29.

Hank Aguirre of Detroit, the American League leader last season with 2,21, is far down the listings this year at 3.77.

An earned run average is determined by multiplying a pitcher's earned runs by nine and dividing the result by his innings pitched.

CHANGE FOR BETTER?—Owner of the Dallas Texans, the American Football League champ, Lamar Hunt (above) announces in Kansas City that his club will move to Kansas City for the 1963 season. Hunt said that about 13,000 season tickets had been sold in K.C. It is estimated the club lost a million and a quarter in three seasons in Dallas.

Romano Is Placed On Disabled List, Tribe Sells Burton

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The Cleveland Indians late Monday placed catcher John Romano on the disabled list because he broke his finger during Sunday's game, and sold outfielder Ellis Burton outright to the Salt Lake City farm club of the Pacific League.

The two actions made room on the Tribe roster for the morning callup from Jacksonville of catcher Jim Lawrence and relief pitcher Ted Abernathy.

General Manager Gabe Paul said Lawrence, 25, was called up to replace Romano. He was batting .267 and was regarded as a fine receiver for the Florida farm club. Abernathy, 30, had a 2-1 record for Jacksonville.

Lema Captures Memphis Open

Aaron Defeated On Playoff Hole

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Tony Lema forced a playoff and edged Tommy Aaron on the first extra hole Monday winning the $50,000 Memphis Open Golf Tournament.

Lema took a par four on the first hole of the sudden death playoff to Aaron's bogey after they had finished regulation play with 270s. The hole was good for $9,000 for Lema and left Aaron with $4,600 second-place money.

Both golfers finished the regulation 72 holes with 10-under-pars —four strokes ahead of the nearest contenders.

Harold Kneece of Aiken, S.C., the third-round leader, and Bruce Crampton of Australia shared third place with 274s. South Africa's Gary Player was next with 275.

Grouped at 276 were Gene Littler of Rancho Bernardo, Calif., Dow Finsterwald of Tequesta, Fla., and George Bayer of South Pasadena, Calif.

Clark Leads D.C. Area Qualifying Round For Open

LANDOVER, Md. (AP)—Jimmy Clark, Layhill, Md., who had not entered in 10 years, led the Washington, D.C., area qualifying round for the U.S. Open championship at Prince Georges Country Club Monday with a 2 under par 142.

Clark finished one-stroke ahead of Jack Peck, Norbeck, Md., who shot the back nine of the 6,901-yard, par 36-36—72 course in 33 to finish with 143.

Eleven places were at stake for the sectional qualifying round scheduled for June 10 at Congressional County club in Bethesda, the site of next year's open. Scores of 149 or better qualified.

Perkey Cullinane, an amateur from Norbeck, was the only other member of the 63-man field to match par with 144. Jimmy Dellizzi, a driving range operator from Tysons Corner, Va., and Chick Evans, a 25-year-old ex-soldier from Phoenix, Ariz., were next with 145.

Charley Bassler of Silver Spring, and Ralph Bogart, Chevy Chase, were the principal casualties. Bogart, the medalist in last year's local qualifier, shot 151. Bassler picked up on the eighth hole of the second round after an opening 76.

Final Finish, 51-A Score Kelly Wins

Department 51-A whipped Receiving, 13-3, at County Field, and Final Finish nudged Tread Room, 5-4, at Corriganville in Kelly-Springfield Softball League games played yesterday.

Ken Had Good Season
One Of Curly's Boys
The Death Of Mackey
Interest In WVU Nine

By C. V. BURNS

KENNY JOHNSON, former Allegany High School baseball and basketball star, was one of the standout baseball players in the West Virginia Conference this season with Coach Clem Clower's Salem College Tigers.

Johnson was rated one of the top third basemen in the conference and had the third highest batting average on his team, collecting 12 hits in 37 official trips for .324. He led the team in RBIs with 12 to his credit.

Kenny was graduated from Allegany High in 1957 and that was his banner year. He batted .373 in 15 games and led the basketball Campers in scoring with 460 points, winning the city scoring crown for the second straight year.

Coach Clower, who hails from Petersburg, W. Va., completed his sixth straight winning season at Salem. This year's team won six and lost four and had three games rained out. Last season the Tigers copped the W.V.C. title with a 9-1 record.

RALPH BEACHLEY, baseball coach at Northern High School, is one of the real "oldtimers" associated with the sport and played in the outfield for the University of Maryland back in the days when "Curly" Byrd was coaching the Terps.

That was before Burton Shipley's long reign as baseball mentor at College Park.

Eddie Semler, now supervisor of physical education in Washington county and coach of baseball, football and basketball at old Hagerstown High School for many years, was an outfielder on the same team with Beachley who was graduated in 1922.

Mr. Beachley, now vice principal at the Garrett county school, wanted baseball there so he took over the reins. His Huskies have won three and lost two to date.

Very little has been heard of the Northern High team in baseball because it is not in any league and plays a strictly independent schedule.

Mr. Beachley was principal at Elkton seven years, held a similar post at North East Md., for 15 years and was at Williamsport for six years.

THE TEAM winning the West Virginia Region 4 baseball title meets the winner of Region 1 in the first game of the state championship tournament at Parkersburg, Thursday, June 6 at 1 p. m.

Other regional pairings are 8 vs. 6, 3 vs. 5 and 7 vs. 2. Finals are set for Friday, June 7 at 7:30 p. m.

Other regional pairings are 8 vs. 6, 3 vs. 5 and 7 vs. 2. Finals are set for Friday, June 7 at 7:30 p. m.

Mathias plays Keyser today and the winner battles Charles Town for the Region crown.

There will be trophies for the winning and runner-up teams and awards for the 12 members of the all-tournament team selected at Huntington.

No team from nearby West Virginia ever has won the state title. Wellsburg was the 1962 victor. East Bank leads with four winners since 1945.

THE DEATH of Leo Mackey, 69, manager of the Cumberland Colts in 1931 and 1932, at Pittsburgh Saturday night, should revive memories of the final years when this city was represented in organized baseball as a member of the Middle Atlantic League and played its home games at Mid-City Park in Shantytown on what was once the old C. & O. Canal Basin and on the same site which today is called Mt. Wineow.

Mackey led the Dobbins to the league championship in 1931 when the league was known as "Daily's Dozen because there were 12 teams in the loop and Elmer M. Daily, who still resides at Ebensburg, Pa., was the president.

Cumberland won the first half title with a 42-19 record and beat Charleston (W. Va.), the second half winner, four games to two in the championship series.

Mackey's 1931 team won 82 and lost 46 games and his 1932 Colts posted a 62-60 record. Dick Hoblitzell, a former major league player, managed Charleston the year they lost to the Colts.

The 1932 team was Cumberland's last club in minor league ball.

The Colts were affiliated with the New York Yankees in 1961 and 1962 and Col. Nelson W. Russler was president of the local Club.

Twelve teams in the 1931 league were Charleston, Beckley, Hagerstown, Scottdale, Fairmont, Johnstown, Clarksburg, Huntington, Wheeling, Charleroi, Jeannette and Cumberland. Charleston is the only one of those cities still in organized ball.

It is said that the 12-club M. A. League of 1931 is the only one in the history of the minor leagues.

Those who remember the Colts' championship team of 32 years ago will recall such players as Augie Daviu, "Chip" Helmick, Bob Synnott, Bernie Connell, Marvin "Lefty" Duke, Max Posnak, Bob Walsh, son of Big Ed Walsh, of major league pitching fame; Jimmie Densmore, Vito Tamulis, Dom Paiment, Jake McCloy, Daniel "Buddy" Hall, Bill Salamone, Pat Shea and Howard Graham.

In addition to serving as a minor league manager at Chambersburg, Butler, McKeesport, Akron and Cumberland and as scout for the Yankees, Pirates and Cubs, Mackey was a topnotch basketball official and handled many pro, college and high school games in the Pittsburgh area in his heyday.

As a reporter of Colts' games we were always in close contact with Mackey and regarded him as a smart baseball leader. In later years when we attended World Series dinners in New York, Boston, Brooklyn and Cleveland we heard his name mentioned frequently and many complimentary remarks were made in his behalf by men in the higher ranks of the national pastime.

THERE IS a great deal of interest in the tri-state area focused on West Virginia University's participation in the District III baseball playoffs at Gastonia, N. C., May 30-June 1 because Dave Wilson, the Keyser southpaw, and Dale Ramsburg are among the Mountaineer stars.

Wilson got his start at Keyser High School, then played at Potomac State College and with teams in the Pen-Mar and Twilight leagues. Ramsburg played sandlot ball after starring at Potomac State.

The Keyser portsider is 7-0 this season with an ERA of 2.06 and is 10-0 in two years at WVU. He has whiffed 58 in 48 innings this season. Infielder Ramsburg wound up the regular season with a batting average of .315.

Coach Steve Harrick's Mountaineers will battle the Wake Forest Deacons and Florida State opposes Auburn in the openers of the double elimination tourney Thursday.

WVU has a team batting average of .301 in winning 29 out of 30 games. Eight players hit .300 or better.

Eddie Feigner Heads Four-Man Tourist Team

World's Top Hurler To Perform In Tilt At Penn Ave. Field

A four-man team will take on a nine-man team tonight when Eddie Feigner, the King, and his three man "Court" oppose the Tri-State Area All-Stars at Penn Avenue Field at 8 o'clock in an exhibition game being staged for the benefit of the Dapper Dan Little League.

This will mark the third appearance of the King and His Court and the game is expected to attract a large crowd.

Feigner is rated as the world's best softball pitcher and is credited with winning 2,035 games in 15 seasons. He averages 20 to 21 strikeouts a game and he fans batters while blindfolded, pitching on his knees, from second base and between his legs. He deliberately loads the bases and attempts to strike out the next three batters.

The King's teammates are Jerry Jones, shortstop; Mike Meilicke, catcher, and Al Jackson, first base.

Cecil Grimes, manager of the V.F.W. of the Rocking Chair Softball League, will lead the All-Stars into battle.

His infield will be composed of Pete Cecil, first base; Donnie Madden, second base; Al Martin, third base and Jim Eckard, shortstop. In the outfield will be Solly Emerick, Fred Meeks and Glen Burke.

Hayden Phillips and Paul Kiern will toil on the firing line for the All-Stars with Jim Shaffer receiving. Mickey Clark and George Stevenson are the utility players.

The King and His Court will put on a pre-game show of 30 minutes.

The Cumberland Dapper Dan Club is sponsoring the game under the direction of William V. Keegan, police and fire commissioner. Tickets at the gate are $1. The price of admission for children under 12 is fifty cents. Children under eight are admitted free.

BALTIMORE (AP)—Paul Haviland, head pro at Bel Air's Maryland Golf and County Club, fired a 143 for 36 holes at Pine Ridge golf course Monday to pace the leaders in qualifying play for the U.S. Open golf championship.

Haviland, who carded a par 72 on the first 18 holes and a 71 on the second 18, edged Paul Quinn, also of Bel Air, by one stroke. Quinn is the assistant pro at Maryland Golf and Country Club.

The seven will go the Congressional Country Club in Washington June 10 for the final qualifying round for the U.S. Open, to be held this year in Brookline, Mass.

Such prominent Maryland pro-Johnny Bass and Andy Gibson, among 39 golfers in the Pine Ridge preliminary, failed in their bids to qualify for the trip to Congressional County Club.

Smith, Grey Earn Terp Track Awards

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Seniors Dick Smith and Bill Grey received the two major awards at the annual University of Maryland track awards banquet Monday night.

Smith, a middle distance runner from Parkville High School near Baltimore, won the Halbert Evans award for the outstanding performer on the 1963 squad.

Smith broke coach Jim Kehoe's 23-year-old record for the half-mile run at Chapel Hill on May 11, covering the 880 yards in 1:49.8. It was the fastest half-mile run in the East this season.

Smith also is a member of the Maryland relay team which ran the mile in 3:14.7 and the sprint medley relay in 3:22.4—both school records.

Grey, also a member of the relay team, received the Alvin E. Aubinoe trophy as the outstanding contributor to the track team in four years of competition. He has a 3.4 academic average.

KING COMES HERE TONIGHT—Eddie Feigner, better known as the King of softball pitchers, and His Court, make their third appearance in Cumberland tonight when they play the All-Stars at Penn Avenue Field at 8 o'clock. The original four-man softball team is beginning its 17th year of play and has made a big hit in past appearances here. Feigner, the man with the rubberized arm, pictured above, hurls every game and often pitches blindfolded. The game today is for the benefit of the Dapper Dan Little Baseball League and is promoted by William V. Keegan, police and fire commissioner.

Popp Qualifies For Sectional

Former Mill Creek Pro Has Card 147

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (UPI)—West Virginia amateur champion Billy Campbell, Huntington, fired the only sub-par total at the Guyan Golf and Country Club here Monday to lead a field of seven qualifiers for sectional berths in the U. S. Open Golf tournament.

Campbell fired a sparkling, six-under-par 66 for the first 18 holes of the 36-hole qualifier and slipped to a two-over-par 74 on the final 18. His nearest competitor was Ed Tutwiler Jr., Charleston, 10-time state amateur champion, who had a 73-72—145.

Four other qualifiers each had 147 totals: Roy Shreves, Waverly, W. Va.; Gene Thompson, Bluefield; Joe Taylor, Charleston, and Adolph Popp, Oak Hill.

Al Atkins, Ashland, Ky., was the seventh qualifier with a 72-76—148.

Shreves, Thompson, Taylor, Popp and Atkins all are professionals.

Campbell, Popp, Shreves and Tutwiler will play in the sectional qualifier at Pittsburgh June 10 and Taylor, Atkins and Thompson will participate in the sectional at Cincinnati, also June 10.

A total of 18 amateurs and 20 professionals took part in Monday's play.

A highlight came when 16-year-old entrant Billy Reed, Huntington, had a hole in one on the 135-yard, par-3, sixth hole. Reed finished at 156.

Candy Spots May Get Mud Test

Runs Thursday In Jersey Derby

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (UPI) — Whether or not Candy Spots can run in the mud may be tested Thursday when the Preakness Stakes winner takes on five rivals in the $100,000-added Jersey Derby at Garden State Park.

The weatherman has predicted two days of rain for the area, creating the possibility of an off track for the race.

Just as he did prior to the Kentucky Derby, in which Candy Spots was third behind Chateaugay and Never Bend, trainer Mesh Tenney said he had no idea how the colt would do on a slow track.

"I honestly don't know what Candy will do if the track is off," the trainer insisted.

Candy Spots never has run over an off track and Tenney insists it is impossible to tell from workouts how a horse will do in the mud until he is tested in a race.

Two of Candy Spots' opponents in the Jersey Derby have "mud marks," Maine Chance Farm's Get Around and Mrs. Charles Morgan's Sky Wonder.

Get Around won the Withers Stakes at Aqueduct on a muddy track with Sky Wonder second. Sky Wonder also won on an off track at the Atlnatic City course last fall.

George D. Widener's Top Gallant, Elmendorf's B. Major and Walnut Hill Farm's Pymelian also are expected to start in the Jersey Derby.

500 Drivers Allowed Two Hours' Practice

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—The 47th and fastest field for the Indianapolis Motor Speedway 500-mile race will be allowed only two more hours on the track before the starter's green flag drops at about 11 a.m. EST Thursday.

Activity was confined to the garages Monday as crews of the 33 qualifiers made mechanical changes in an effort to get that extra burst of speed that could lead to the first-place share of a purse topping $425,000.

The track will be open from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday for drivers to practice with a full load of fuel in their cars. Crews used only minimum amounts of fuel for 10-mile qualification runs the last two weekends.

Louisville Lip In England For Fight June 18

Clay Predicts He'll Take Cooper In Five

By MIKE HUGHES
(United Press International)

LONDON (UPI) — Cassius Clay told British boxing experts Monday he is the "greatest, most beautiful fighter the world ever saw" and added that Henry Cooper, his June 18 opponent here, is "crazy to fight me."

Clay arrived in Britain by plane and the British press came to a news luncheon staged by fight promoter Jack Solomons "to see what this geezer looks like." They saw — and heard.

The self-styled "Louisville Lip" got off to a slow verbal start. He had let it be known he didn't want to see Britain's Cooper until the night they clash at Wembley Stadium, but Cooper showed up at the luncheon anyway. For a while, Clay sulked.

Then he started orating:

"Cooper is a tramp," Clay shouted. "A bum. A no good. I will take him in five; but if he talks too much I will take him in two, or maybe one."

When Clay was called to the microphone to make a speech during the luncheon, he said: "Gentlemen, I need no introduction. I'm the greatest, most beautiful fighter the world ever saw.

"It will be the greatest show London has ever seen. Cooper is crazy to fight me, the kid (Cooper is 28, Clay 21) is asking to be murdered.

"After this fight I'm off to Las Vegas to challenge the 'Bear' for the world championship."

Cooper was quietly amused by all Clay's remarks and said "I came to meet him but all I've done is hear him. If he fights as well as he talks, then our Wembley date should be a great night for boxing."

Valley High School moved into first place in the Allegany County Baseball League without lifting a bat yesterday, as Fort Hill scored a 2-1 victory over Mt. Savage which knocked the Indians from the number one perch.

The Sentinels' home diamond triumph moved them into a second place tie with their victims, each with 7-3 records, and enabled idle Valley to assume the lead with its 6-2 mark.

Some more scrambling of the standings could take place today, with three games scheduled including two involving the top clubs.

League-leading Valley travels to Cumberland for a game with Allegany (5-4) at Campobello, Mt. Savage is host to LaSalle (4-5), and Beall and Bruce tangle at Frostburg. Fort Hill is idle today. All three contests are set for 4 p. m.

Consecutive base hits by Billy Dean and Lonnie Lewis with none out in the bottom of the seventh provided Fort Hill with yesterday's win, and gave right-hander Dave Price the pitching nod over Mt. Savage southpaw Ralph Wilson.

Dean opened the inning with a three-base hit and came home with the tie-breaking tally on Lewis' single.

Price allowed the Indians just one hit and it led to their only run in the fifth inning. Ed Garlitz singled over the shortstop's head, and Price filled the bases by walking Wilson and hitting Don Engle with a pitched ball. Garlitz then scored on Wayne Howell's grounder to deep short.

Fort Hill had scored the first run of the game in the previous frame on a walk to Howard Reynolds, and successive singles by Leroy Hanekamp and Vince DelaGrange.

Price, who walked one batter and hit two, struck out five in evening his record at two wins and two losses. Wilson was tagged with his first defeat in five starts. The tall lefthander yielded five hits, walked three and fanned 11.

Both clubs played tight defensive ball, with Fort Hill third baseman Tom Hamilton being charged with the only error of the contest. The Indians' Jim Carter made several sparkling plays at second base.

Colts Sign Mackey, Syracuse Halfback

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The Baltimore Colts announced Monday the signing of their second 1962 draft choice, John Mackey of Syracuse.

Mackey, a tight end who was also chosen by New York of the American Football League, also played halfback. He set a Syracuse record by gaining 321 yards last season on 15 pass catches.

He started the 1962 season at end but was shifted to halfback after six games and led his team to three wins in the last four games.

Groat, Causey Pacing Major Loop Hitters

Dick Regains His 1960 Magic Touch

By BEN OLAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Dick Groat, a big hit three years ago when he won the National League batting title and the most valuable player award, has regained the magic touch with the St. Louis Cardinals to take over the lead from Philadelphia's Wes Covington.

Groat, who has the major league high of 67 base hits, lifted his average three points to .351 in last week's games. He had 11 hits in 30 tries. Meanwhile, Covington fell 12 points into second place at .348. The Phillies' outfielder managed only four hits in 15 attempts.

Led League In 1960

Groat led the senior circuit in 1960 while with Pittsburgh, hitting .325. He slumped to .275 the next season and batted .294 in 1962 before the Pirates traded him to St. Louis last November. His hit total is eight more than anyone else in the big leagues. Bill White is the NL runner-up with 59 safeties.

Brooks Robinson of Baltimore and Chuck Schilling, Boston, share the American League lead with 54.

Ron Fairly of the Los Angeles Dodgers and Ed Bailey, San Francisco, are deadlocked for third place in the National League batting competition. Each is at .333. Ken Boyer of St. Louis advanced from 10th place to fifth with a 13-for-30 performance that boosted his average 21 points to .331.

Causey Paces AL

In the American League, Wayne Causey of Kansas City regained the top spot from Frank Malzone, Boston. Causey climbed one point to .356 with six hits in 17 times at bat. Malzone dropped into a second place tie with Floyd Robinson of the Chicago White Sox at .343. Malzone dropped 13 points while collecting seven hits in 25 at bats and Robinson claimbed from sixth place on a 12-point pickup, 8-for-19.

Leon Wagner of the Los Angeles Angels slipped one notch to fourth at .342. Chuck Schilling of Boston, Clete Boyer of the New York Yankees and Al Kaline of Detroit share fifth place with .327.

Wagner slammed two home runs and continues to lead the American League in this department with 13. He also is No. 1 in runs batted in with 37. The figures include Sunday's games.

Hank Aaron of Milwaukee heads the National League in homers with 14. The Cards' Boyer drove in six runs last week to take over the RBI lead with 36, one more than Aaron.

Los Angeles Loses Services Of Wills

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Maury Wills, the Dodgers' hot-shot base stealer, will be out indefinitely because of calcification of the left foot, spokesman for the team said today.

Wills is scheduled to take another x-ray treatment Wednesday at Daniel Freeman Hospital in Inglewood. He finished one treatment Sunday and another today. Dr. Robert Kerlan is in charge of the case.

The Dodgers hope to know by Wednesday when Wills will return to the lineup.

Wisconsin Crew Wins Over Navy

Badgers Triumph By 2½ Lengths

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Wisconsin pulled away from Navy at the half-mile mark and sprinted to a two and one-half length crew victory Monday.

The Badgers were timed over the smooth Severn River course in 9 minutes, 35.4 seconds for the 1¾ miles. Navy finished in 9:45.1.

Navy led briefly at the start, stroking at 43 and Wisconsin at 39. After both crews settled to a 32, the Badgers took a four-seat lead.

Wisconsin, stroked by Bernard Losching of Janesville, Wis., made its move at the half-mile mark and had open water just before the final quarter mile. Wisconsin finished at 35 strokes a minute and Navy 36.

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our sincere thanks to all our friends and neighbors who were so kind to us during the illness and death of our dear mother and wife. We also wish to thank the pallbearers and all others who rendered any assistance.

The Goldie Kennell Family

We wish to express our sincere appreciation to all of our relatives, neighbors and friends for their kindness and expressions of sympathy following the death of Mrs. Margie Foutz Lonaconing, Maryland. We especially wish to thank Rev. George I. Loar, all those who sent cards and floral offerings and those who donated the use of their cars for the funeral.

The family

We take this means to thank our friends and neighbors for their kindness extended to us during the illness and following the death of our beloved husband and father, Sanford B. Robinette. We also wish to thank Rev. Balderson, Rev. Allem, the nurses and doctors at Memorial Hospital, the choir of the Methodist Church, Cresaptown, those who sent flowers or in any way assisted us in our recent loss.

Mrs. Lena Robinette & family

In Memoriam

In sad but loving remembrance of my husband and our father, Ephriam Stafford who passed away 3 years ago today, May 25, 1960.

The blow was hard, the shock severe
We never thought the end so near,
Only those who have lost can tell
The pain of parting without farewell.
Our thoughts cannot express how we miss you
Our heart cannot tell what to say
God alone knows how much we miss you
Deep in our heart lies a picture of a loved one laid to rest
In memory's frame we shall keep it, because you were one of the best.

Sadly missed by his loving wife daughters and son

Nations Need Religion, Hays Tells Audience

JFK Aide Speaks At Brotherhood Event

Religion is essential in working toward an incorruptible state, Brooks Hays, former congressman from Arkansas and now a special assistant to the President, said at the annual Brotherhood Week banquet last night at he Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

Host to the dinner was the Cumberland Chapter of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, which honored a local Catholic, a Protestant and a Jew "for distinguished service in human relations."

Citations were presented to Maryland Attorney General Thomas B. Finan, Lewis J. Ort, and Irving Rosenbaum.

The "oneness of the human family" was stressed by the guest speaker, who said freedom in the United States will be secure if "we dedicate ourselves and re-examine our faith," periodically.

Nations Need Religion

A nation can be no stronger than its religious convictions, and the values of life are focused on the soul of the individual who becomes a building block or cell life of political society, he added.

Mr. Hays said citizens of the nation must "continue to live in peace, harmony and mutual trust."

Referring to racial problems, Mr. Hays said the minority is marching through a tunnel and can now see the light, and "we don't want to see that light extinguished."

The guest speaker said the people of Cumberland have renewed their devotion to American ideals.

Before getting to the serious side of his talk, the guest speaker sprinkled several amusing religious and political quips to bring laughter from the audience. He described himself as a bi-partisan Democrat and an ecumenical Baptist.

The speaker was introduced by Senator J. Glenn Beall, who referred to Mr. Hays as a man with "outstanding ability" and "long interested in public affairs." Senator Beall gave a brief background of the speaker and his work as a Congressman.

Invocation was given by Rev. Francis E. Montgomery, assistant pastor of St. Michael's Catholic Church in Frostburg.

Religious Liberty

Toastmaster was William Walsh, who introduced Mayor Earl D. Chaney, who welcomed those in attendance. The mayor said, "One of the keys to our country's greatness and one of the basic foundations of its strength is religious liberty.

"It is the right of each of us to enjoy and it is fitting that we should pause here this evening to pay tribute to those who exemplify the goal which every freedom-loving American tries to achieve," he added.

Nathan R. Jerald, Maryland regional director of the National Conference, extended greetings from state officials and referred to the annual Maryland report placed at each plate which gave an account of "what we are doing."

Rabbi Max Selinger, spiritual leader of B'er Chayim Temple, spoke briefly.

In accepting his citation, Attorney General Finan said he was "deeply grateful," and referred to his late father as a "far greater candidate."

In a brief talk at the outset of the speaking program. Mr. Walsh remarked that it was the fifth citation dinner, and said "we must live and work together under the fatherhood of God." Evidence of support of the program was shown in the attendance at the dinner, he added.

During the meal, James R. Hager sang "Trees" by Joyce Kilmer and was accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Robert R. Gormer.

Business, industry and labor were represented at the annual dinner.

'Stars' Of Brotherhood Dinner

The three recipients of the Brotherhood award of the local unit of the National Conference of Christians and Jews are shown at last night's Brotherhood Week dinner at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club with the principal speaker, former Rep. Brooks Hays of Arkansas, left, now a special assistant to President Kennedy. Award winners are Lewis J. Ort, second from left, a Protestant, Irving Rosenbaum, a Jew, and Thomas B. Finan, a Catholic.

Bedford Road Sanitary Plan To Be Decided

$980,000 Sewerage Program Explained

Some 75 interested residents of the Bedford Road area crowded into the county commissioners' meeting room at the Court House for the County Sanitary Commission's public hearing last night on the proposed creation of the Bedford Road Sanitary District.

The sanitary commission took the matter under advisement amid indications that a final decision will be made Friday night.

Playford Aldridge, commission chairman, explained that the purpose of the meeting was to outline the feasibility report to the residents of the area, then get an expression from the people involved.

A detailed explanation of the proposal was provided by Leonard M. Glass of the Matz, Childs and Associates consulting engineering firm from Baltimore, who did the survey.

To Cost $980,000

His figures showed an overall estimated cost of $980,000, some $311,200 of which would come in the form of federal and state aid.

There would be no federal or state matching money for the $330,400 estimated as the cost of the collecting sewers to serve some 1,700 persons in a four square-mile area running all the way from the city limits to the Mason-Dixon Line.

Matching money would be provided for the $622,400 estimated for interceptor sewers, pumping station and force mains. Another $27,200 would be needed to pay the interest of the project during construction.

Mr. Glass' figures showed the total estimated cost for the Bedford Road residents would be $668,800. That is less than 25 per cent of the assessable base of the area, which now stands at $2,675,200.

Sewage from tthe Bedford Road area would be brought by interceptor sewer to the Cumberland sewage treatment plant for treatment. Mr. Glass explained that it was considered unfeasible for Bedford Road to build its own treatment plant because the dependable flow on Evitts Creek is not sufficient to carry off the effluent from a treatment plant.

Mr. Glass presented figures which showed that the annual cost of the system would amount to $41,900. They include $13,380 interest on bonds, $16,720 for annual amortization of bonds, $4,450 for operation and maintenance, and $7,350 for treatment costs

To finance the cost, money would come from three sources. Some $12,510 a year would come from front foot assessments at 30 cents a foot. Some $5,500 would be provided by an ad valorem tax of 20 cents on each $100 of assessed valuation of property and an additional $23,970 from 428 sewer service charge connections at $56 a year.

Vocal Opponent

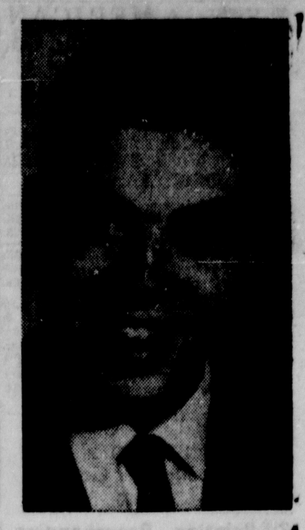

Most of the questions on the plan came from the opponents of the proposal. Most vocal of them was Carl Twigg, who raised a number of objections and concluded by stating the $98 a year he would have to pay for sewage disposal was too much.

Two Health Department representatives were present to explain the sewage problem that faces the Bedford Road area. Thomas W. Shives, an engineer for the State Health Department, said he checked along Bedford Road yesterday afternoon between Pea Vine Run and Knobley Road. He described this two-mile strip as as bad as any area he has ob-

Mt. Savage Cousins Lead In 4-H Broiler Show

Two Mt. Savage boys who are first cousins finished first and second in the annual Western Maryland Junior Broiler Show held Saturday at the Western Maryland 4-H Center in Garrett County.

Paul Robison was the winner and James J. Robison placed second. Other winners were John Schmidt of Garrett County, third; William Dillinger of Washington County, fourth, and James Strite, also of Washington County, fifth.

Assistant County Agent Charles Babich said the purpose of the contest is to teach fundamentals of good brooding practices and the economical production of high quality poultry.

Each entrant had a minimum of 50 straight run chicks which were his own chicks. The project ran for eight weeks. Each participant submitted a bird sample of three dressed broilers and their record books.

Garrett County Agent James McHenry was chairman for the three-county project.

Participants besides the five top winners were Clitus Fry, Sterling Fry, David Long and Tom Snook, all of Washington County, and Carl Schmidt and Craig Rush of Garrett County.

Gillette Files New Action In Fair Trade

A new equity suit seeking an injunction for violation of the Maryland Fair Trade Law has been filed in Allegany County Circuit Court by the Gillette Company of Boston, Mass.

This latest action was brought against Di-Deb of Virginia, Inc., 900 Gay Street. The defendant is described as the operator as lessee of the drug department of the Tri-State Discount Center.

The bill of complaint states that on or about December 27, 1962, the defendant was notified of the existence of Gillette's fair trade contracts with retailers in Maryland and of the minimum prices in effect thereunder.

Nevertheless, the bill of complaint charges, on January 17 the defendant sold adjustable razor sets, shaving cream and razor blades at substantially less than the minimum retail selling price.

Gillette seeks to enjoin permanently Di-Deb of Virginia, Inc. from advertising, offering for sale or selling at retail and Gillette products at less than the minimum retail selling prices stipulated under fair trade contracts in effect in Maryland.

At the same time this bill of complaint was filed, Gillette moved for dismissal of an equity suit filed February 4 against G-M-S (Cumberland) Inc., owner and operator of the Tri-State Discount Center.

This equity suit was filed for Gillette by William Walsh, Cumberland attorney, and Thomas P. Perkins III, Baltimore attorney.

Man Killed In 2-Truck Collision

A Petersburg, W. Va., man was killed yesterday when the tank truck he was operating was struck by a tractor-trailer which was traveling down a grade without brakes. The accident occurred about 12:30 p. m., six miles east of Moorefield on Route 55, in Hardy County.

Killed was J. Fred Greenawalt, driver for the M. A. Bean Oil Company, Moorefield.

West Virginia State Police Trooper A. J. Wade said the tractor-trailer truck operated by Edward Watson, 25, of RD 3, Arab, Ala., loaded with 325 boxes of chickens on ice, was descending the mountain when the brakes got hot.

While trying to "ride it out," down the grade, he saw the tank truck approaching and cut to the right to avoid a head-on collision.

The rear of the tractor-trailer flipped to the left, striking the tank truck and resulting in the death of the driver.

Trooper Wade said the tank truck and the trailer of the other truck were demolished, while the tractor of the larger truck was heavily damaged.

Watson was charged with negligent homicide and posted bond for a hearing today in Moorefield.

Mr. Greenawalt was born in Pendleton County, June 28, 1928, a son of David A. and Clara (Alexander) Greenawalt. He was a veteran of the Korean War.

Besides his parents he is survived by his wife, Dorothy (Riggleman) Greenawalt; two sisters, Mrs. Mark Muterspaugh, Harrisonburg, Va., and Mrs. Elmer Gilliams, Moorefield; five brothers, Hugh Greenawalt, Kline; Forest Greenawalt, Wilmington, Ill., Vernon Greenawalt, Pulaski, Va.; Carl Greenawalt, Chantilly, Va., and Dale Greenawalt, with the Air Force in Charleston, S. C.

The body is at the Arnold Funeral Home, Petersburg.

Mr. Greenawalt was a member of Petersburg EUB Church, where a service will be conducted Thursday at 10 a. m. Rev. Wilton Thomas will officiate and interment will be in the Greenawalt family cemetery at Kline.

B&O Expects To Clear One Track Today

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad expects to have trains moving this morning over the 17-Mile Grade near Swanton, where 38 cars of an eastbound Southwest Timesaver left the tracks early Sunday night.

A railroad spokesman said work crews hope to have one track of the B&O main line cleared by about 7 a. m., when the National Limited, eastbound from St. Louis, is due to pass. The train, No. 2, is due here at 7:55 a. m.

No injuries were reported from the derailment of the fast freight which wrecked at Strecker, near Bond.

This is 39 miles southwest of Cumberland and 1.7 miles east of Swanton.

Traffic was being re-routed over the Monogah Division through Morgantown and into Connellsville and then into Cumberland on the Pittsburgh Division.

Work train crews with "big hooks," the giant 250-ton cranes, from Cumberland and Grafton are digging into the maze of twisted box cars from both ends.

The mishap occurred at 7:15 p.m. near the beginning of the 17 miles of downgrade from Altamont.

The cause of the accident was not announced, but railroad authorities are conducting an investigation.

Ousted FSTC Teachers Sue For Hearing

BALTIMORE (AP)—The four English teachers whose contracts were not renewed by Frostburg State Teachers College filed suit Monday to force the State College Board of Trustees to schedule a public hearing for them.

Judge Shirley B. Jones of Baltimore Circuit Court signed an order giving the board and Frostburg president R. Bowen Hardesty 10 days to give cause for not granting the hearing.

The suit, filed by Baltimore attorney Fred Weisgal, charged that Hardesty told the four on March 28 they would not be rehired "without any academic basis and without assigning any reason, but solely on his own whim."

The four teachers—John Cole, Francis L. Ireland, Dr. Edmund Skellings and Norris Merchant—asked the board of trustees to hold a hearing to determine the reason why they are not being retained.

But the board ruled on May 15 it would be improper to intervene because it had given Hardesty the power to terminate faculty contracts in the board's by-laws.

The order signed by Judge Jones also tells the board to stay within 10 days why the provision giving Hardesty this power should not be voided.

Two Referenda Are Scheduled In Early June

Residents of parts of Allegany County will vote in two referenda in early June, according to Matthew J. Mullaney, chairman of the County Board of Election Supervisors.

Voters living in the area served by the LaVale Volunteer Fire Department will ballot Tuesday, June 4, on a proposal to finance the operations of the fire department by means of a fire tax not to exceed 10 cents on each $100 of assessed property. Although this is primarily for residents of Election District 29, a few residents of Election Districts 5 and 6 also are eligible.

LaVale voting will be at the Fire Hall from 7 a.m. until 7 p.m. Tuesday, June 4. Mr. Mullaney said that about 3,000 persons are eligible to vote in the LaVale election.

Voters living in the Ellerslie area will cast ballots on Tuesday, June 11, on a proposal to establish a street lighting system in that community. Mr. Mullaney said that about 300 are eligible to vote in this referendum. Prospective new voters may register at the Court House until June 6.

Both referenda are the result of legislative action in the last session of the General Assembly in Annapolis.

'Shadow' And Friends

This days-old fawn poises carefully on his skinny legs as he visited the Times-News office yesterday to be photographed with two friends, Robert "Rags" Morgan, left, and Leo Bridges, both of Barrelville, who found him lying along State Route 36 between Barrelville and Mt. Savage yesterday. Ordinarily game officials advise people to leave "lost" wild animals alone because their parents usually will come for them if given a chance. But "Shadow," as neighborhood children named him, was in danger of being run over, so his rescuers picked him up to give to game wardens for transfer to Indian Springs Game Refuge near Hancock, where he can grow up away from automobiles. He got his name from the fact that he's completely unafraid of humans, and likes to follow them around. Mr. Morgan and Mr. Bridges estimated his age at three to five days.
